Bond Issue to be a Preferred Claim Against the Water Plant.

No Aldermen Found Who Will Introduce the New Telephone Ordinance.

Fond du Lac Claims Passed Last Evening—The Printers' Petition.

An ordinance was passed under a suspension of the rules at the council meeting last night which provided for the form for the water bond certificates, and in addition making the bonds a lien on the plant. Section 2 is as follows: "Each and all of said series, together with the interest thereon, without reference to the time when they shall be actually issued and sold, shall be equally and ratably a first lien upon all water and light appliances and structures of any kind erected, owned or purchased by the city, as provided in section 9 of chapter 9 of the city charter."

In response to an inquiry from Alderman Krummel, City Attorney Cant explained that the ordinance would not limit the bonds to the plant security. They would remain general bonds and at the same time a preferred claim against the plant. The reason for section 2 is that the purchasers of the first issue may not claim that their bond is first and preferable to the portions of the bonds issued later.

NO FATHER FOUND.
The telephone ordinance was not heard from, for the reason that no alderman had been found as yet who is willing to introduce the thing. Not one of them seems to have sufficient compassion to introduce it simply to get it before the council, without any idea of favoring it.

In the absence of President Nelson, who is at Buffalo, Vice President Nelson presided over the deliberations. Alderman French and Hale were the only other absentees. City Attorney Cant presented a communication on the Russian thistle matter, advising the appointment of "weed agents" to exterminate the pest at salaries to be fixed by the council in accordance with the act of legislature. On the recommendation of the committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks, to whom the matter had been referred, Street Commissioners J. C. Carey, C. Melby, Aaron Olson, A. R. Hall and O. S. Olson were asked to take the title and duties to serve without extra pay.

FOND DU LAC CLAIMS.
The committee claims and amounts reported favorably on the payment of about $30,000 in orders issued by the old village of Fond du Lac. The claim was presented and threw out about $4000 worth of claims. The city treasurer was ordered to pay the claims.

Then a petition, signed by President W. A. Lovelace and Secretary C. E. Lovelace, of the Typographical union, and a long string of names, was presented asking that the council order the union label to be placed on all city printing as a guarantee of superior workmanship and that the work be done in Duluth by union men. The committee moved to refer to the committee on claims and accounts and someone else moved to table. This brought Alderman Harwood to his feet in a hurry.

"I think some action should be taken at once," said he. "There is no use in delaying men any good let them have what they want."

Alderman Christensen explained that he had desired reference to the claims and accounts committee because Alderman Harwood was chairman and he knew the petition was in the hands of that committee. There was no more dispute and peace settled among the city fathers.

STATE DEPOSIT.
A resolution was introduced by Alderman Lerch and passed directing the mayor and city clerk to file the proper proof of the city's claim for $302.56 against the State bank with the assignee. The resolution was then adopted to assign the claim to the bondsmen upon the payment of the entire sum by them. Then the Security bank was chosen as a city depository in place of the State bank, with bonds fixed at $50,000.

The city attorney rendered an opinion that the city is authorized to pay the claims of St. Mary's hospital for furniture destroyed as a result of caring for city smallpox patients last year.

Several surveys and plans for a 48-foot road to give better roadway facilities between Fond du Lac and New Duluth were presented by City Engineer Patton and referred to the committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks.

Building inspector H. J. Robinson reported that during the month he had granted twenty-two building permits of a total value of $56,365. The city clerk's report was also presented.

The city rolls were approved and passed as follows:
Health department ..... $2,151.92
Board of public works ..... 1,033.25
Engineers and inspectors ..... 351.68
Maintenance of streets, chain gang, etc ..... 2,553.05

LECTURES.

HARVEY AND MCCLARY.
Tomorrow evening the great debate on the financial question between Congressman J. E. McClary, of Mankato, and W. H. Harvey, of Chicago, author of "Coin's Financial School," will take place at the Lyceum. Mr. Harvey has probably achieved fame as a financial authority more sufficiently than any other man in America. His work on finance entitled "Coin's Financial School" caught public fancy instantly and everybody asked "Who is Harvey?" It was not long before he was heard of defending his book and his theories in the clubs in Chicago and people began to realize that Harvey was a more borrower of ideas, but could defend his side of the case with masterly ability. The debate between Harvey and McClary drew the eyes of a great many people for Mr. Harvey made a fine showing against the Michigan man, who is quite a master of platform rhetoric and sarcasm.

Congressman McClary is unquestionably a better fitted to defend the money metalists than was Mr. Harv. He has not that disagreeable buncome and bluster which is a student. His address will be an argument and he will defend upon logic and solid facts rather than on ridicule.

GEORGE R. WENDLING.
George R. Wendling will deliver the next lecture in the Star course at the First M. E. church on Tuesday next. The subject chosen for him to lecture upon is "The Names of Gallies." Thousands of people have discussed Mr. Wendling's lectures, and hundreds of public men have written opinions. Officers, perhaps in excess than in that of any other man doing a large amount of regular business work, are his lectures the subject of editorial comment. More than that of any other man upon the platform do college professors, editors, clergymen and public men who hear him, write about him. It is and has been for ten years an almost unbroken current of the highest praise. They are supposed to fill the blood, and when they don't, we fall sick.

The only reason they don't is because they are sick themselves, and the only thing that will cure them is Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

The blood needs continual purifying or filtering. Impure blood is poisonous. Poison in the blood is disease.

VIRTUE IN ASPARAGUS.

The Effect and Healing Properties of Asparagus.

Asparagus the Great Healer of and Tonic for the Kidneys—Used in France by the Most Eminent Physicians With Great Success.

Symptoms and Effects of Sick Kidneys—Dangerous Not to Cure Them—Sparagus Kidney Pills Cure Kidney Troubles.

Asparagus is one of the common plants which are valuable for medicine, although people don't generally know it. Did you ever eat asparagus?

Well, what were the effects on your kidneys?

Asparagus has the best healing and tonic effects on the kidneys of any drug known.

French physicians discovered this years ago, and have used it ever since. But the best properties of the plant are to be got in Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

There is a reason for this, and that is, that the extract of Asparagus used in Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills is prepared from the roots, and not the stalks.

Also, that it is prepared by a special process, which extracts all the virtues of the plant without waste.

So that the Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills is as good as perhaps ten dishes of asparagus.

There are medicines for this and drugs for that, one for rheumatism, another for gout, another for Bright's disease, or rather a dozen or therefor each disease.

When all the time, Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills would cure any one of them.

The cure made would mean a perfect cure, and not merely a short relief. For the truth is that the kidneys are the source, pure enough cause of a large number of our principal diseases.

They are supposed to filter the blood, and when they don't, we fall sick.

The only reason they don't is because they are sick themselves, and the only thing that will cure them is Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

MURPHY THE VICTOR.

Norton Succumbed to His Superior Fighting Last Evening.

After several weeks of talking and putting up money and taking it down again, Jimmy Murphy and Tom Norton met in the ring at the Glen theater at Superior last evening and Murphy knocked his man out in a clear and decisive manner. The fight aroused more interest in Duluth than in Superior and the audience was composed largely of Zenith city people.

Right against heavy odds, a scientific one and was characterized by clever work on both sides. The knock out blow was a right hand tap on the chin, which put Norton to sleep for about thirty seconds. Murphy pushed the fight all the time and kept Norton on the defensive.

The crowd was one of the most orderly and quiet ones that ever gathered at a State or local boxing match. Mr. Hayes was referee. The fight by rounds was as follows:

First round—Opened briskly. Norton purely on the defensive. Murphy landed his left on Norton's face four times and his right on his head twice. First blood claimed and allowed for Murphy.

Second round—No time was lost in getting together. Norton led his right, but it fell short. Murphy had things pretty much his way, getting in two right straight punches on Norton's neck while he carressed successfully Norton's forehead.

Third round—Murphy opened at once with a clever right on Norton's left cheek and sent in his left hand which raised the color. This was at the opening and the men were very cautious the rest of the round.

Fourth round—Men clinched at opening and Norton got in a rather heavy left hand punch on Murphy's shoulder. Murphy retaliated with right and left on Norton's middle and sent in a right tickle for good effect.

Fifth round—Murphy led and Norton came out with his right and gave Murphy a slight scrape on the shoulder. Round was tame.

Eighth round—Honors were about even in the opening. Norton was a hot one and Murphy peppered Norton in a lively manner, the big man scarcely getting time to catch his breath before he was back. Jimmy's right tapped Norton's left optic, then his left disturbed his proboscis, then his right landed a heavy blow on his nose and then Murphy straightened him up with a left handed jab on the cheek.

Ninth round—Some slight exchange of blows was made, but the honors were still with Murphy. He landed a heavy blow on Norton's nose and then Murphy straightened him up with a left handed jab on the cheek.

Tenth round—Murphy had Norton worried in the rapid shower of blows which he poured into him. Norton landed once or twice, but his blows lacked force.

Eleventh round—Both men did some good work at the start, but Murphy's superior science told. Norton went down from a straight right to the head, but he got up in time. He rushed at Murphy savagely, but Murphy avoided him by a quick step to the left and landed again at the close of the round.

Twelfth round—Norton looked pretty sore. He was a hot one and Murphy peppered Norton in a lively manner, the big man scarcely getting time to catch his breath before he was back. Jimmy's right tapped Norton's left optic, then his left disturbed his proboscis, then his right landed a heavy blow on his nose and then Murphy straightened him up with a left handed jab on the cheek.

Thirteenth round—Norton looked pretty sore. He was a hot one and Murphy peppered Norton in a lively manner, the big man scarcely getting time to catch his breath before he was back. Jimmy's right tapped Norton's left optic, then his left disturbed his proboscis, then his right landed a heavy blow on his nose and then Murphy straightened him up with a left handed jab on the cheek.

Fourteenth round—Murphy exclaimed: "I'm on my feet doing all the work." Norton landed once or twice, but his blows lacked force.

Fifteenth round—Norton was a hot one and Murphy peppered Norton in a lively manner, the big man scarcely getting time to catch his breath before he was back. Jimmy's right tapped Norton's left optic, then his left disturbed his proboscis, then his right landed a heavy blow on his nose and then Murphy straightened him up with a left handed jab on the cheek.

Sixteenth round—Murphy started in to finish Norton. He landed a heavy blow on Norton's nose and then Murphy straightened him up with a left handed jab on the cheek.

Seventeenth round—This was short. Norton was a hot one and Murphy peppered Norton in a lively manner, the big man scarcely getting time to catch his breath before he was back. Jimmy's right tapped Norton's left optic, then his left disturbed his proboscis, then his right landed a heavy blow on his nose and then Murphy straightened him up with a left handed jab on the cheek.

Twenty-first round—Norton was a hot one and Murphy peppered Norton in a lively manner, the big man scarcely getting time to catch his breath before he was back. Jimmy's right tapped Norton's left optic, then his left disturbed his proboscis, then his right landed a heavy blow on his nose and then Murphy straightened him up with a left handed jab on the cheek.

Twenty-second round—Norton was a hot one and Murphy peppered Norton in a lively manner, the big man scarcely getting time to catch his breath before he was back. Jimmy's right tapped Norton's left optic, then his left disturbed his proboscis, then his right landed a heavy blow on his nose and then Murphy straightened him up with a left handed jab on the cheek.

Twenty-third round—Norton was a hot one and Murphy peppered Norton in a lively manner, the big man scarcely getting time to catch his breath before he was back. Jimmy's right tapped Norton's left optic, then his left disturbed his proboscis, then his right landed a heavy blow on his nose and then Murphy straightened him up with a left handed jab on the cheek.

Twenty-fourth round—Norton was a hot one and Murphy peppered Norton in a lively manner, the big man scarcely getting time to catch his breath before he was back. Jimmy's right tapped Norton's left optic, then his left disturbed his proboscis, then his right landed a heavy blow on his nose and then Murphy straightened him up with a left handed jab on the cheek.

Twenty-fifth round—Norton was a hot one and Murphy peppered Norton in a lively manner, the big man scarcely getting time to catch his breath before he was back. Jimmy's right tapped Norton's left optic, then his left disturbed his proboscis, then his right landed a heavy blow on his nose and then Murphy straightened him up with a left handed jab on the cheek.

You May as Well Be Out of the World As Out of Style...

And, as wide-awake merchants, we do not propose to be behind the times. All of our competing friends are heralding forth sales of some kind, and not to be outdone, we hereby announce a Great November Sale, with the only difference that our sale will consist of new and fresh goods that are arriving daily from the eastern markets (as we have no old stuff to dispose of) and that we guarantee the prices on our new goods to be as low, if not lower, than you will have to pay for discarded styles of other sales. This morning another express load of new and fine jackets came in. Prices—well, you will have to come in yourself, for it will be a surprise for how little money you can buy a new and stylish garment. Last week we advertised 48 pieces Serges at 49c. They were sold in one day. We telegraphed for more and this morning we received 20 pieces of all-wool, new shades; 48 pieces French Serges, the same as the ones sold at 49c, and tomorrow you can buy any of them at 45c. This is without exception the greatest value. Beat it if you can.

First, Last and all the Time

We are always the first to secure new styles, and at all times, and all the time, sell nothing but the very best, reliable goods and at the lowest price. When we do advertise a certain price on any goods they must and will be found as represented. To illustrate this, we received this week 80 tailor-made jackets, which we marked for tomorrow's cloak trade in three lots:

Lot 1—20 new heavy Boucle Jackets at.....	$10.00
Other houses will ask $15.
Lot 2—35 new heavy Boucle Jackets at.....	$12.50
Other houses will ask $18.
Lot 3—25 new heavy Boucle and English Kerseys.....	$15.00
Other houses will ask $25.

We expect this fine lot of Jackets to be sold on sight, for all you have to do is to see it to appreciate the value, compared with anything in this or any other city.

Dress Goods.

It demands our strongest expression to describe the elegant and favorable condition of our Dress Goods Department. All we can say is that we are very busy, and the only reason we can give is that the ladies know where to buy new, stylish and reliable goods at such low figures as we are selling. We advertised yesterday 20 pieces of 48-inch all-wool French Serges and by 11 o'clock this morning half of them were sold. This is the way we do business, and reliable goods only do we keep.

This is a Premier Bissell Carpet Sweeper. We are the only house in this city that sells them. If you wish to buy a Carpet Sweeper, apply to us, and we will send you one to your house for five days trial. If at the end of that time you do not find the sweeper to be the best of all you ever had, please notify us and we will call for it; payments to be made only after you are perfectly satisfied by five days' trial. A cheap carpet sweeper is no good at any price. The Bissell is the best.

We are agents for the celebrated Imperial Pinned Patterns, known to be the best.

STORTZ FINE.

Officer Fiskett's Assault Was Found Guilty Yesterday.

Emil Stortz, the man shot by Officer Fiskett two weeks ago in a midnight scuffle, was found guilty of assaulting the officer after an all day trial in the municipal court yesterday. Judge Boyle imposed a fine and costs aggregating $100 as Stortz had been punished nearly enough in his prison. Gust Hiner, a companion of Stortz's, who was tried on the same charge, was released. An unusual interest was attached to the case from the fact that the assault had not been proven Stortz could have sued the officer for damages as salve to his wounds.

The fracas occurred at about 2 o'clock in the morning of Oct. 29 at the corner of Nineteenth avenue west and Superior street. Two nights before Officer Fiskett had dispersed a crowd of rowdies among whom were Emil Stortz and Gust Hiner. On the night of the shooting, according to the officer, the two men followed him around and finally as he stood on the corner Stortz came up and making a remark about the weather aimed a blow at Fiskett, which he dodged. Then the officer broke his club on Stortz's head and punched him about a block to the corner where the scuffle and shooting occurred. Hiner took no part in the fight. The shot took effect in Stortz's shoulder inflicting a painful wound. In addition he was adorned with a two-inch cut on the head as the result of the blow which broke the club.

Attorney Jensen, who defended the men, made strong efforts to prove that the shooting was unprovoked and hadgered the officer on the stand. Stortz admitted he had drunk eight glasses of beer, but claimed he was not intoxicated and was going to an adjacent dancing hall.

IT COSTS LITTLE AND DOES MUCH. Remark when you attend a play or concert how many people disturb the performance by coughing. One man begins and the cough seems to be contagious. The interruption is a great nuisance, and there is no need of it, for anyone may cure a cough with the Pinocla Balsam, which costs 25 cents. It soothes the inflammation in the throat and loosens the mucus which clogs the air passages. A few doses of Elys' Pinocla Balsam stop a cough and heal a sore throat.

THE TRIAL

Case Against Superintendent Warren of the Street Railway on Today.

Charged With Running a Car Without a Vestibule After Nov. 1.

No Witnesses Introduced by the Company—The Jury Disagreed.

The case of the state vs. Herbert R. Warren, superintendent of the Duluth Street Railway company, came up for trial in the municipal court this morning before Judge Edson. Attorney Thomas S. Wood appeared for the defendant and County Attorney Arbury for the state.

The complaint was sworn out by President Alfred McCullum, of the Federated Trades assembly, and charged the superintendent with running a car without a vestibule after Nov. 1, without being provided with a vestibule for the protection of the car employees in violation of the statute. The jury was drawn yesterday and was composed of James Dingwall, W. L. Jackson, George Trosper, John T. Dow, James Maghie, George J. Mallory and Nell McLaughlin.

As soon as the case was called Judge Edson called on the attorney for the plaintiff, Attorney Wood, to demand on the ground that the complaint failed to set out the facts of the case. The complaint was read and the court ruled in favor of the company. Then Secretary Hoopes was placed on the stand to show Superintendent Warren's connection with the company.

HE SAW THE CAR. He was followed by Alfred McCullum, the complaining witness, who testified to having seen the car mentioned in the complaint in operation. McCullum was asked by Attorney Wood to give the name of the person who made the complaint to him. The witness replied that quite a little commotion was caused among the crowd of spectators in the street when the car was seen. The witness said that he wished merely to show the witness. The objection was sustained by the court.

W. G. Joerns and Ben Elzer also testified as to having seen the car. The company introduced no testimony. The books were brought into court, but were not read.

Attorney Wood in his address to the jury characterized the prosecution as petty, contemptuous and unwarranted. He said that the company had been running its cars in a perfectly legal manner and it was only through an oversight that the alleged offense occurred. It was done in violation of the statute. The prosecution had utterly failed to show that the superintendent had any knowledge of the matter. The witness had added a number of illustrations showing that the law on a warm day like the day in question was not applicable.

On Tuesday next George Wendling, the noted lecturer, is to deliver his famous lecture on the "Man of Galilee" at the First Methodist church. Wendling first went on the lecture platform on an invitation from one of the city's literary circles. He devoted most of his time to the work of his private affairs and such that he cannot fill many engagements. One hundred and thirty nights ago he was in Duluth, Minn., for a month, as Mr. Wendling's second—not his first—visit since the earlier days of Beecher, Douglass and Phillips.

DOCTORS WANT KOLA

If Assumed That Fresh, Undried Nuts Alone Are Used.

This Assurance Is Given Them by the Compounders of Dr. Charcot's Kola Nerve Tablets—Hence These Tablets Are Prescribed by the best Physicians.

While no well posted man, at home or abroad, denies the virtue of Kola as a specific against nervous diseases and an invigorant for blood, muscle and brain. It is a fact well known to all chemists that unless the fresh, undried nuts are used the value of the remedy is very largely lost.

Hundreds of reputable physicians, who have long desired to use Kola in their practice, are now prescribing Dr. Charcot's Kola Nerve Tablets because the compounders guarantee that they are made of the best quality of undried Kola nuts, and many physicians that in a few years liquid Kola will be obsolete.

CLANS. The proprietors of Dr. Charcot's Kola Nerve Tablets in cases of nervous diseases and cases where a general tonic to the nervous system is required. I am very well pleased with their action, and for my experience think they are superior to anything of the kind in the market.

Very truly yours, Henry S. Tucker, M. D., 128 State street.

I have tried the Kola Nerve Tablets on patients and find it a wonderful stimulant, and so far as I have used it perfectly harmless.

This compelled the skipper to employ counsel. In court the matter was finally settled by the seamen receiving their back pay and two of

LOWELL.
Lowell's best poetic utterance is generally felt to be his highest achievement in verse hitherto; but his poems are uneven. In the artistic sense often unfinished, says William Cranston Lawton in November Lippincott's. Some of them, indeed, were prematurely worked, before the vein of thought had worked itself out. Longfellow has produced a far greater mass of faultless verses, though they are all in less lofty keys than "The Cathedral" and the "Memorial Ode." It is not incredible, then, that the call of patriotism has indeed deprived us of our rarest poet's unuttered masterpiece.
Certainly of Lowell the writer, far more than of any contemporary, it is constantly said, and said by those who knew him best, the man was far greater than all the memorials he has left of himself. They do not adequately reveal his genius. If there was indeed such a sacrifice of his highest literary attainment, the more precious and memorable for us all should be the costly lesson of his life.

DEFINITION OF AMERICANISM.
It seems to me to be, first of all, a consciousness of unfettered individuality coupled with a determination to make the most of self. One great force of the American character is its naturalness, which proceeds from a total lack of traditional or inherited disposition to crook the knee to anyone, says Robert Grant in November Scribner's. It never occurs to a good American to be obsequious. In vulgar or ignorant personalities this point of view has sometimes manifested itself in swagger or insolence, but in the finer form of nature appears as simplicity of an unassuming yet dignified type. Gracious politeness, without condescension on the one hand, or fawning on the other, is notably a trait of the best elements of American society, both among men and women.

CRIME VS. HYPNOTISM.

Our Real Character is a Protection.

In the normal state, the subjective mind is controlled by the objective mind. It is always controlled by suggestion, and usually by the suggestion of one's own objective mind. But in the hypnotic state, the hypnotizer tries to take control—and to a certain extent succeeds, says Harriet E. Orcutt in New Bohemian. So long as his suggestions are in line with the suggestions of the subject's own objective mind, so long as they conform to his usual habits, and do not conflict with his conscience, the hypnotizer's control may seem perfect. But as soon as the hypnotizer commands or suggests that the subject do something wrong which he has always considered wrong, the case is entirely different. The law of auto-suggestion comes into play. He now has to work against the subject's own objective mind.
If I have been taught from my youth up that it is wrong to steal, the habit of thought formed will be my bulwark of safety, which no hypnotist can break down. I will obey the previous suggestions of my own objective mind instead of responding to his, and if he persists in forcing his suggestions, he will lose his power of control. My mental dissatisfaction will cause me to rouse from my hypnotic sleep. If, on the contrary, I have no regard for the laws of property, or have been in the habit of stealing, I will accept the suggestions with alacrity, and will immediately become a most accomplished thief.
But this is not a proof that the platform subject who accepts suggestions to steal handkerchiefs from the bystanders has thiefish tendencies. This is merely an experiment; there is no moral question at stake nor any physical danger at hand, so auto-suggestion is silent, and the hypnotist's suggestion is acted upon. A dagger may be given a party dagger with which to attack a friend. There is no real danger to anyone, the objective mind gives no warning, and the senseless attack is made. If the danger were real, the suggestion would be refused. The moral element would enter into the case, and the previous suggestions of the subject's own objective mind would protect him. He will not do what in his normal state he believes to be wrong. In the hypnotic state as out of it, our character is protected.

THE APPAREL ... AND THE MAN ...

A Washington tailor says that a man should dress as well as he can afford, and that he will not lose by so doing.
Many a man can afford the suit better than he can afford the time to pick it.
But it doesn't take long when a man has an idea of the fabric he wishes, the style and the price. It is the business of the advertisement to help the busy man with hints upon these points; and it is doing great business in that way this month.

Duke of Marlborough Weds Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt This Afternoon.

Ceremony Impressively Performed in Presence of Many Invited Guests.

A Magnificent Social Event Which Has Been Long Awaited.

New York, Nov. 6.—The duke of Marlborough and Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt were married at St. Thomas' church, Fifth avenue and Fifty-third street, at 12:30 o'clock today. The threatening aspect of the weather early this morning prevented the gathering of a large crowd, although as early as 8 o'clock a number of women had monopolized the entrance to the Twombly mansion, adjoining the church, and their example was followed by later arrivals who took advantage of railings, doors and garden plots and in some instances window sills were occupied by women.

As the hour for opening the church approached many of the guests were waiting in the vicinity in their carriages, drove up to the entrance on Fifty-third street and Fifth avenue, and alighting, got in line in a good-natured way. The crowd at this time began to swell, and the police in charge of four precinct commanders, under orders from Inspector K. F. Wright, kept the spectators moving, none being permitted to loiter in front of the approaches to the edifice, and there was no unpleasantness or crushing in the immediate vicinity of the entrance through which the bridal party or guests had to pass.

Every arrival at the church was eagerly scanned by the crowd, but very little could be seen of any of the costumes by outsiders, owing to the awnings, which were closed the entire length of the curbs and which prevented the guests from being seen on alighting from their carriages. The crowd, however, made up for this by surrounding the carriages which were in line, men and women scrambling and jostling against each other in their eagerness to see the occupants.

The crowd around the Vanderbilt home on Seventy-second street was equally owing probably to the efforts of the police. Residents in the vicinity were out in force upon their stoops, and all of the windows in the hotel facing the bride's home were occupied principally by women.

The Vanderbilt party left for the church early, where they were accompanied by the governesses of the family. Among the early arrivals were Miss Armide Smith, sister of Mrs. Vanderbilt, and a maid, who drove over early and alighted at the church. The Mrs. Belmonts, Goulets and Cuttings arrived early and chatted among themselves while they waited for the doors to open.

The arrangements were perfect. Women of wealth and social prominence lined each other in the richness and grandeur of their equipage, lending to the occasion the brilliancy of an Old World court function. The guests were conducted to pews by the ushers. At 10:30, Dr. Warren, the organist, entered the church, seated in a casket, surplice and crimson hood, and for over an hour performed a varied program on the organ. The program was followed by one piece by the New York Symphony orchestra, with Walter Damrosch as director.

Mrs. Vanderbilt and Sir Julian Pauncefote, representing the duke's family, entered the church through different doors, shortly before noon. The bridegroom, accompanied by his best man, then walked from the vestry to the chancel rail, where they were soon joined by the bride and her maids. Miss Vanderbilt was preceded by her bridesmaids. She followed, leaning upon the arm of her father, W. K. Vanderbilt. When the bride reached the chancel rail, the choir, accompanied by organ and harp, sang "O Perfect Love, All Perfect Love, Abounding," set to music by Barnby.

At its conclusion, Mr. Brown, the rector, came forward and in a sonorous tenor voice delivered the introductory and charge. Dr. Brown was followed by Flislay Potter, who, aided by Bishop Littlejohn, performed the ceremony, which began at 12:30. The choir then sang the anthem from the English service: "God be Merciful Unto Us and Bless Us."

The benediction was then pronounced and the bride, leaning on the arm of the groom, entered the vestry, where the marriage register was signed and witnessed by Mrs. Vanderbilt, W. K. Vanderbilt, Sir Julian Pauncefote, and Bishop Littlejohn. The surging crowds outside were kept back by 30 policemen, and the duke and duchess proceeded to the reception room, where standing beneath an immense floral ball, they received the guests invited to the breakfast, among whom were W. K. Vanderbilt, Sir Julian Pauncefote and members of the British embassy.

The duke, accompanied by his best man, the Hon. Ivor Guest, drove to the church, and alighting they were accorded a warm reception. When the bride, who was accompanied by her father, arrived at the church, the cheering was something tremendous, and the bride leaned heavily on her father's arm as she ascended her from the carriage. The police on duty prevented a rush and a passage way was kept open from the church entrance to the bridal carriage.

When the newly-wedded couple left the edifice to be driven to the bride's home, the surging mass cheered again and again, and many thousands of people thrust the necks from the church to the residence of the bride on Seventy-second street.

THEIR LINEAGES COMPARED.
Both From Strong Men Who Were Leaders.

The marriage of the great-granddaughter of Cornelius Vanderbilt to the descendant in the ninth generation of John Churchill, conqueror of France, ruler in all but name of England, and first duke of Marlborough, is a notable event. The contrast and comparison of the great statesman and general of Queen Anne's reign and the great railroad man of the nineteenth century is most interesting. There is not space to make it here in full, but it has no end of suggestions.

For Cornelius Vanderbilt is not altogether dwarfed when he is placed beside John Churchill. True, Churchill was much the greater man. Not only had he the advantage of figuring in battles and parliaments and cabinets which provides the whole magnificent pageant of the history of a time for a background—and not only was he a statesman, but he was an epoch of peculiar dignity and splendor—but in spite of his avarice and his time-serving qualities, he did have the greatness of soul which distinguishes the few majestic figures in the world's records. Cornelius Vanderbilt, on the other hand, was scarcely a figure in history at all, as it is written by the drum and trumpet of history, and as for greatness of soul, if he had it he was never given a chance to show it. Yet he had one faculty that Churchill had, and it was what made him the first master of the science of transportation that the world has ever seen and up till the present time the greatest—the faculty of altering and ordering conditions according to his far-seeing sense, disregarding the objections and interpositions of smaller-minded men. Vanderbilt, in a material way, had genius—and genius means imagination. And John would not have been ashamed of Cornelius—not by any means. He was a man of profound respect for money, had John. He took it from women, which is what Cornelius did with his Dutch blood, would never have done, even if he had had a pauper for refusing it. And then, too, though he was born a gentleman, John Churchill had had a very bare outlook of it at first as a young man, for he had not had a sister whom the duke of York peculiarly delighted to honor and cherish by the way in those days was not thought so much discredit to a lady as was a widow. So that he knew what it was to rise in the world. And in fine, Vanderbilt could have done as well as any army better than John Churchill could have built up the New York Central railroad.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE.
But now to look at the couple—Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt and the grandchild of the late William H. Vanderbilt. She is about 25 years old, very vivacious and quite good-looking, with dark hair and a pronounced brunette complexion. She is betrothed to one of the greatest fortunes in the world and whose reputation need not be recalled, and whose mother is divorced. Of course she can scarcely be expected that so young a girl should be so pronouncedly characterized, but her friends say she has already been tested. As is always the case with the children of parents with great fortunes, she has been most carefully educated and trained to understand the responsibilities of her station, and to act as the mistress of a great establishment.

The young duke of Marlborough is really one of the most promising of the young noblemen of England. Far from following in the footsteps of his father, whose reputation need not be recalled, he has already made his entry into politics and intends to devote himself to a public career. He was made the mover of the address of the lords in reply to the queen's speech on the opening of the present parliament, an honor generally conferred upon the most distinguished and promising of the younger members of the party in power. He is very young, having been born on Nov. 13, 1871, so he is still short of his 24th birthday; his school was Eton and his university Cambridge, where he did very well at his books, and also played polo and cricket in a manner to satisfy contemporary requirements. He is also said to have been ought to have—good taste in pictures, books and china; and altogether he is likely to do himself and his country credit. He is not likely to turn out a new Beauchamp or Salisbury, but may do as well as his grandfather, who was lord lieutenant of Ireland under Beauchamp, and that will be doing infinitely better than any member of the Four Hundred whom Miss Vanderbilt might have married would ever have dreamed of doing.

THE SPENCER-CHURCHILLS.
The young duke, Charles Richard John Spencer-Churchill, his name is the ninth duke of Marlborough and twelfth earl of Sunderland. He is really a Spencer, and a Churchill only by royal warrant. He is sprung from John Spencer, who was killed at the battle of Tewkesbury, and whose descendants became Baron Spencer and earl of Sunderland in the next century. It was the third earl of Sunderland who took for his second wife Anne Churchill, the daughter of the great duke, and after the death of the marquis of Blandford, the son of the duke of Marlborough, the Churchill titles were confirmed to the children of Anne Churchill. The present Charles thus became the second duke, and after the death of his last brother, Bobby, then I think I'd better reverse that and keep the quarter for myself.

NEEDED IT MORE.
Truth: Fond Parent—Here, Bobby, here's a quarter to put in your mission, a quarter to put in your mission, Bobby—Say, pop, do you think the heathen is as used to luxuries as I am? Fond Parent—No, hardly. Bobby—Then I'd better reverse that and keep the quarter for myself.

MASSACHUSETTS.
The Claims of the Republicans Well Founded.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 6.—Massachusetts went Republican yesterday by a plurality equal to that of two years ago. Governor Greenhalge and the entire Republican ticket is elected. The governor's council will contain but one Democrat. The Republicans elected thirty-three of the forty senators and have a big majority in the house.

The hopes of the friends of female suffrage have been buoyed beneath an avalanche of ballots. A fair estimate of the result would be that the vote against female suffrage to one in its favor.

MISSISSIPPI.
The Democrats Have a Majority of Fifty Thousand.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 6.—The Democrats have carried the state by about 50,000 majority. The campaign was on the money question, and the result is a complete victory for the free silver men. The Populists did not receive more than 15 per cent of the total vote. In this city 349 votes were polled, being less than one-half the registered vote. Burkett, Populist candidate for governor, got 14 out of this number, and the remainder to McLaughlin, the Democratic candidate.

PENNSYLVANIA.
Republicans Swept Everything Before Them Yesterday.

Philadelphia, Nov. 6.—Benjamin P. Haywood (Rep.) has been elected state treasurer by about 14,000 plurality. A Republican gain of about 15,000 over 1893. The state also elects seven judges of the new superior court. Of these six Republicans are elected as follows: James A. Beaver, E. N. Willard, J. J. Wickham, C. K. Rice, H. J. Reeder and G. B. Brady. The seventh man on the ticket is in doubt.

FLORIDA IN STILLWATER.
Stillwater, Minn., Nov. 6.—One of the surprising results of the municipal election here yesterday was the political transformation of the city council which is now Republican by a majority of one member. L. Simonet, George Munkel and Paul Hanson were elected to the council and E. L. Hoopes, A. T. Jenks, Andrew Severance and A. E. Edholm were chosen school directors. They are all Republicans.

VIRGINIA DEMOCRATIC.
Richmond, Nov. 6.—The Democrats have elected about three-fourths of the legislature. They lose Botetourt, Stafford and King George counties, and lose one member in Halifax.

Now, this man had a first-rate piano player and a good vocalist. He was a man who had a place where you need music to attract the crowd.

A laughable incident occurred in New York yesterday. A lady was playing poker with a group of men. She was a very good player, and the men were all very good players. November Term of the District Court Is Now in Session.

Mendenhall Case Only One of Interest on the Civil Calendar.

The Elder Case Will Be Tried Again at This Term.

The November term of district court opened at the county's hall on Sixth avenue east this morning with the calling of the calendar by the three judges assembled in Room 1 with Judge Ensign, who has charge of the calendar this term, presiding. Before beginning the call, Judge Ensign called the attention of the bar to a rule of the court which has almost fallen into disuse by which all pleadings must be filed by the second day of the term and notice was given that all pleadings must be on file by tomorrow morning.

This term's printed calendar is the thinnest that has been issued in a long time, and were it not for one or two cases it would be wholly devoid of interest. It is not likely to last a great while, for there will be but fifty jury cases, and the several trial cases will melt rapidly. The Mendenhall divorce case is the only one on the civil calendar of public interest that will be tried, and that will probably be set for some day after the 20th. The case of Abraham Bailey's heirs against the Bankers' Life association of Minnesota was continued. In the case of Luther Mendenhall against Ellen R. Mendenhall, to deprive the defendant of her dower rights on the ground of desertion, the defendant's attorney moved to postpone trial until after the divorce case is heard, as there is no use of trying both of them.

THE CRIMINAL CALENDAR. The criminal calendar contains several cases of interest. The Elder case, according to County Attorney Arbuthnot, will probably be tried this term, the indictment upon which Elder was tried last term coming up again. Mrs. Smith has nothing left but to plead guilty, but her case may go over a term in hopes of bringing Mr. Smith to his real culprit, to justice. The case against Elmer Halling, the ex-collector for the Marshall-Wells Hardware company, will also come up for trial.

Objected to the Steak.

Explorers are generally hungry and William Barnett is no exception to the rule. Last night he was arrested in a restaurant on Superior street near Fourth avenue west by Chief Armstrong, who alleges that William jumped on the prostitute form of a waiter with violence and dispatch. Barnett claimed justification for the assault. He says he ordered a porterhouse steak and the restaurant Mercury brought him a diminutive piece of something which resembled sole leather which he refused to eat either at 100 pay for it. The proprietor entered an objection and the assault followed. William deposited $25 for his appearance this morning. He showed up, but as no one appeared to prosecute he was not held.

Judge Was Lenient.

Special Judge Boyle handled the drunk cases in the municipal court this morning as Judge Edison was busy with the hearing of the street railroad company's case in the other room. His honor was feeling particularly lenient this morning and in consequence William Riley, J. R. Denning and George Shields, drunks, and John Donovan and Sidney Laroque, trespassers, were released with suspended sentences. Jack McCue and William McGuire received fines of $10 and costs and in default were taken up to the sheriff's domain on the hill.

Beginning with next Saturday and each Saturday thereafter, until further notice, Dr. Schiffman, at No. 400 Woodbridge block, will inaugurate a half price day for amaranth and cement fillings. The fillings of that description will be strictly first class, put in with the same care and skill as full priced, and no filling to cost over 75c. This will be a great boon to children, teachers and those who have not the time on other days.

Planos are leaving Coon's daily.

DIVORCES

Nine Separations Granted in the District Court This Morning.

Mrs. Loftus, Whose Husband Disappeared Four Years Ago, Secured One.

Courteous Stipulation Filed Today in the Bailey Insurance Case.

Today was divorce day in district court, and the way misadventured pairs were dissolved was a reminder of Chicago and South Dakota. There were no contests, and in every case but one, judgment for divorce was granted after hearing testimony from the plaintiff and his or her friends and relatives.

In almost every case the plaintiff was a woman, the grounds were various. Most of them were for cruelty and some were for desertion. In Judge Ensign's room, Thomas Humes' application for a divorce from Laura Humes was the first case. Laura did not appear to defend the charge of adultery, and the divorce was granted. The parties are colored.

Mariette Wallace was granted a divorce from Edward Smith Wallace on the ground of habitual drunkenness and desertion, and she was allowed the care of her children.

Anna A. Webb wanted a divorce from John Loftus upon the ground of desertion, existing one year. Formerly the period was three years, but the last legislature made it one year, the new law going into effect in October. The case was brought in June, before the law went into effect, so Judge Ensign was in doubt as to whether a cause of action existed at that time or not. He took the case under advisement.

MRS. LOFTUS DIVORCED.
Jida Loftus was granted a divorce from John Loftus upon the ground of desertion. Loftus was formerly an assistant state weighmaster, and was an important witness in the state investigation of the weighing system in the western here four years ago. He disappeared at that time and has not been heard from since.

Henrietta E. Gillett was granted a divorce from L. Ward Gillett upon the ground of desertion. She was also given the custody of her children.

In Room 3, Judge Moer liberated two dissatisfied complainants, Hannah M. Smith, because Henry C. Smith failed to support her, was given a divorce, and Minnie Ross, because William Ross deserted her, was given a divorce. Judge Morris, in Room 2, also had several cases, and three divorces was his record. Hattie E. Logan was divorced from Harry D. Logan because of desertion. Lucy B. Kriz received a divorce from Jerome S. Kriz for the same reason with the addition of cruel treatment.

Charles S. Carey was divorced from Louisa Carey on the ground of desertion. In all the court this morning put asunder nine couples.

A POLITE STIPULATION.
An exceedingly polite stipulation has been filed in the Bailey insurance case against the Bankers Life association. It states that the parties "desire to say that each believes in the good faith of the other; that if Ballie is the party who has been injured by the association, he claims in the complaint the plaintiffs do not want the money sued for; if he is the company desirous to pay, the plaintiffs have seen or claimed anything to attack the other, and in order to give the company sufficient opportunity to satisfy itself upon the question of whether it ought not to pay the insurance it is stipulated that the case be continued until the May term upon the condition that prior to April 1 the company shall notify the plaintiff if it elects to have the issue of whether Abraham Bailey is alive or dead or whether if dead he died at such a time as to defeat recovery upon the certificates he held submitted upon the merits for trial. If they do not elect to try said issues of fact they agree to pay the claim in full on or after May 1. All other questions except that of Bailey's existence are waived."

THE GRAND JURY.
The grand jury this morning was working steadily away at the usual criminal grist. No indictments have yet been returned, though it was thought that some might be produced this afternoon or tomorrow morning. The particular matter in hand this morning was the case against Charles E. Stuckey, quartermaster of the State bank.

HAYS REINSTATED.

He Apologizes and the Board Rescinds Its Action.

J. W. Hays, who was suspended by the board of trade for six months, has been reinstated. The board took its original action on complaint of one of Hays' customers that he had returned a purchase of flax 2 cents higher than the market reached on the day when the transaction was made.

Hays, since that action, claims that the order was forwarded to him at Superior, and he bought the flax there and really did pay the price he returned it at. He produced a letter from the firm which sold him the flax, saying that he paid $1. The board of directors adopted this resolution:

Resolved, that in view of the apology offered this day by J. W. Hays for his action at the directors' meeting of Nov. 2, 1895, and the assurance that hereafter the corporation known as the Chandler-Hays Grain company will be amenable to the rules of this board in any future transactions they may have with any members of the board, and further, that the difference between this firm and W. W. Jamison has been settled in full, and that all charges against the firm by W. W. Jamison have been withdrawn, that J. W. Hays be and hereby is reinstated to full membership.

PRINCIPAL AT FAULT.

So Says Dr. Routh of the Lake-side Case.

"I noticed a communication in The Herald Tuesday calling attention to the fact that children from a Lakeside family were allowed to go to school within a week after Dr. Speier had pronounced two cases of diphtheria in the family." Being told the children had recovered, he allowed them to return to the school without waiting for official notification from the department. When a contagious disease breaks from the health department, it is the duty of the principal of the school not to allow any one from the family or house to attend school until authorized by the health department. Later on at the proper time, which is about a week after the premises are disinfected, we notify the principal of the fact that the children may return without danger. I am going to have Superintendent Deanefeldt inform the teachers of the existence of the department."

Burned to Death.

The house occupied by Mrs. Dahlberg at the corner of Nineteenth street and West Superior, was completely destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon, and one of her children, a little girl, was burned to death.

The circumstances of the disaster are particularly horrible. A few days ago two children died from typhoid fever, and the two remaining children and their mother were confined in their beds with typhoid when the fire broke out. One of the children was rescued after being burned so badly that recovery is doubtful, and the other's rescue was impossible.

He May Prosecute.

Yesterday afternoon in the municipal court, after an extended trial before Judge Boyle, Mrs. Mary Ward and Mrs. Mary Doherty were given sentences by Judge Boyle for keeping a disorderly house of ill-fame in a couple of rooms at 111 First avenue west. ## THE MUNICIPAL COURT.

PURSUED BY A MOB.

General Kilgore Husted Out of Bismarck Suddenly.

Gen. Kilgore, ex-policeman, restaurant and saloon keeper, of Duluth, who has been conducting a spotting campaign for the State league for the enforcement of the prohibition laws of North Dakota, was hustled out of Bismarck a few days ago at night with a howling mob at his heels, who accelerated his outgoing with a number of pistol shots.

Kilgore landed in Bismarck the day previous with C. W. Bell, the notorious spotter, who informed on the liquor sellers in Fargo. Bell was jailed on a charge of being concerned in the robbery of a hardware store, and admitted the league was paying him $75 a month to put up jobs on the blind piggers.

The mob, after Bell's hearing was ended, hunted up Kilgore and proposed to hang him, but Kilgore, under guard of the sheriff and chief of police, escaped to Moken and took an eastbound train, ordering his papers and his bill to be sent to him at Grand Forks.

At an executive meeting of the Gold and Silver club yesterday afternoon in the office of Giles Gilbert, it was announced that the club had arranged to have Hon. W. J. Bryan speak in United States hall Saturday, Nov. 16.

TO THE SEA

Gossip About the Commission on the Waterway to the Sea.

Expected that the Canadian Commissioners Will Be Appointed Soon.

Not Likely that Much Work Will Be Done Before Spring.

Washington, Nov. 8.—(Special to The Herald).—After a delay of nearly eight months, President Cleveland has at last appointed three commissioners to confer with the Canadian government as to the feasibility and cost of a system of deep water canals connecting the great lakes with the Atlantic ocean. The resolution for the appointment of this commission was passed last February, and had the commissioners been promptly appointed a report might have been made at the coming session of congress. As it is, it will probably be next spring before these gentlemen get down to work.

Considerable surprise is expressed that the president should appoint a Massachusetts man who knows little about the lake region and ignore the great Northwestern section which is so much interested in the project of a deep waterway to the sea. This is probably due to the fact, however, that no Northwestern men were brought to his attention for one of these places. The appointment of Lyman E. Conley, of Chicago, as one of the commissioners is universally commended, as he is thoroughly familiar with the lake region.

Report of these commissioners will have an important bearing on the action of congress in any legislation enacted between the great lakes and the sea. At last session of congress a great number of plans were presented looking to the accomplishment of this end, but to every one of them some radical objection could be found. The route through Lake Champlain and down the Hudson did not seem to possess many advantages, and when again it was not complete navigation to the head of the lakes. The same is true of deepening the Erie canal.

After mature consideration the conclusion was reached by the senate commerce committee, as well as by members of the house interested, that the most sensible plan was to secure a water channel from Duluth to the sea by deepening and enlarging the system of Canadian and American canals already in operation. This could only be done by some sort of an international arrangement, and the result was the passage of a bill introduced by Senator Vilas, of Wisconsin, providing for the appointment of the commission. The members of which were designated by President Cleveland a few days ago.

During the debate on the passage of Senator Vilas' bill, the lugubrious was raised that to follow out the proposed plan would require the system of canal communicating with the lakes from the sea, almost entirely into Canadian territory and that it would be a dangerous thing in case of war with Great Britain, but the members whose sections were affected by the measure, a contingency laughed at the argument advanced by some of the timid members from the South.

The probabilities are that the members of the Canadian commission have already been decided upon by the Dominion government, as Sir Charles Tupper and Premier Bowell when in Washington personally urged the president to appoint the American commission in order that something might be done as soon as possible. Of course, there are many delicate questions to be considered by this international commission, and it is possible that it may be quite a lengthy period before they are able to come to a satisfactory agreement. The members of the American commission serve without any compensation except their personal expenses, and it is possible that there have never been very many applications filed for these positions.

Nothing definite is known as to when the commissioners of each country will get together and begin their work. It is scarcely probable, however, that they will do much work before next spring.

INCENDIARIES SUCCEEDED.

Eight Attempts to Burn the Building.

Cleveland, Nov. 8.—The Speed home for friendless children on East Madison avenue, near Lexington, was destroyed by an incendiary fire today. The inmates all escaped. Since last Saturday eight attempts have been made to burn the building.

The police have been at work on the case night and day, but have failed to find the slightest clue of the incendiary.

MOHICAN INSURANCE CASE. London, Nov. 8.—In the suit, Dr. Herring to recover $15,000 insurance on the American schooner yacht Mohican, which was burned at Shoreham in March last, Montague Eder, the husband of the doctor's former wife, was examined today. He said that he joined Mr. and Mrs. Herring on board the Mohican at Fayal, and denied that there was any unpleasantness between them. He said that he is said to have been a partner of Mr. Herring in the purchase of the yacht, and that he is now in the hands of the latter to the English insurance company.

ENGLISH HORSE RACING. Liverpool, Nov. 8.—This was the last day of the Liverpool autumn meeting, and the feature of the day's racing was the Liverpool autumn cup, a handicap event for 3-year-olds and upwards, over the cup course, 1 mile 3 furlongs, 1200 sovereigns. Mr. Doherty's Rush won, Ronock second, Rockwood and Redwing running a dead heat for third place.

NAVAL WAR RECORDS.

An Immense Demand For the Government Book.

Washington, Nov. 8.—According to Commander Russel in the department of naval war records, the first volume of this publication has proved to be so popular that the demand of the public for it cannot be met, after congress is supplied, even though they are willing to pay for the publication, therefore he recommends that the issue be increased. In his report to Secretary Herbert the commander says the second volume is now in the hands of the printer, and two more volumes will be issued during the year. The entire publication will make between twenty and thirty volumes, and in view of the enormous work of this compilation it is recommended that the office be reorganized and a board created, composed of naval officers and two civilians, the latter to insure impartial judgment of the manuscripts to be included and ensure a uniform line of policy.

Many papers of value have been obtained during the past year. The reports of the Union commanders are full and fairly complete, but it is regretted that the Confederate naval records are not equally so. Great difficulty has been experienced in collecting the latter, partly owing to the fact that a large part of the Confederate archives were burned at the close of the war, and it is hoped that the publishers of the first volume will give the interest of the participants in the events of the war and bring additional material to the department.

RIPARIAN WAR.

Rival Corporations Clash in Thief River Falls.

Crookston, Minn., Nov. 8.—The village of Thief River Falls is torn up over a new war of interests in their milling projects. The Krato Boom and Water Power company, which has lately been formed of citizens of Minneapolis and Eau Claire, Wis., has been successful in securing the right to build a dam on the Thief River, and has begun improvements which are extensive. They have acquired shore rights and are now building a dam. The project of the Thief River Falls people will seriously abridge those rights. ## METHODISTS QUARREL.

Had a Lively Time At Chicago This Morning.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—The meeting of the Methodist society at the Chicago conference was enlivened by an acrimonious debate. This was aroused by the discussion of the plan to set aside from the $50,000 to be asked from the conference, $50,000 for a contingent fund, $15,000 for an emergency fund and $35,000 for office expenses. This money to be used at the discretion of the board of Christian work. Dr. Neely, of Philadelphia, wanted the matter resubmitted to the committee. The revenue inspector in an impassioned manner contended that the proposed action would be neither proper nor legal. He took up the matter and a dozen delegates strove for the floor, and made objections. Bishop Foster finally secured the floor and replied to some length, during which he characterized Dr. Neely's speech as unwarranted.

The bishop then moved as a substitute for Neely's motion that the committee report he taken up at the Chicago conference, and that followed a lively debate. J. W. Boughton, a lay representative from Philadelphia, spoke at length taking sides against Dr. Neely, and a warm personal discussion between the two gentlemen was only prevented by the refusal of Chairman Merrill to grant Dr. Neely the floor. Various other speakers kept at the matter until finally Bishop Merrill settled it by putting the question, and the committee report was adopted.

The business of passing on the amounts to be assigned various conferences was then resumed.

FRAUD ALLEGED.

Errors Which May Result in the Seating of Groat.

Brooklyn, Nov. 8.—The canvassing of the returns on the mayoralty vote was continued today by the committee of 100, in the interests of Edward M. Groat, the regular Democratic candidate. In ten completed wards it is claimed by the committee that 480 errors have been found, and the remainder is floating in the lake five miles from shore off Point aux Barques. The prevailing northeast winds will bring it ashore near Port Hope.

CLASH OF ORDERS.

Which Makes It Unpleasant For the Peasantry.

Havana, Nov. 8.—Rolf, the insurgent leader, who has been operating in the province of Santa Clara, was landed there in June last, has issued an order to the peasants of that province to remove at least three miles from the towns and forts of Santa Clara, under penalty of death. The order is in the hands of the people, and it is evident that it will have a hard fight on its hands, particularly if Cleveland should make a stopping point, as this would be an encroachment upon the field for nearly forty years monopolized by the Detroit and Cleveland steam navigation company. Manager Carter declares an intention to fight Mr. Gordon night and day in the event that this was Cleveland. The company has five steamers, he says, and if necessary can put on four of them between Detroit and Cleveland.

IS LOST

Little Doubt That the Missing Steamer Missoula Has Gone Down.

She Probably Foundered in Lake Superior With All On Board.

The Steamer Gilchrist Is Aground At the Foot of Corsica Shoals.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 8.—(Special to The Herald).—There is no tidings yet of the missing steamer Missoula, which left Port William on Oct. 31 with a cargo of Manitoba wheat, and there is hardly any reason to doubt that the vessel has been lost with all her crew. Numerous vessels have gone over the course between here and Port Arthur since she was reported missing, but no trace of her was seen by any of them. The steamer Olympia, which was dispatched from here in search of her, has searched Port William without having found the slightest trace of the missing vessel. It is altogether probable that the nature of the accident which befall her will remain a mystery until wreckage turns up, and even then it may be left to conjecture. Sam Richardson, a Port Arthur pilot, was on board the Missoula, and some have an idea that he may have grounded the craft in some little harbor, but there is but a slight chance that she will ever be seen again.

The Missoula is a wooden steamer which was built by Thomas Quayle's sons for Capt. Thomas Wilson in 1887. Her measurement is 187 net tons, rating 141, and value $55,000. Her wheat cargo was probably 70,000 bushels, worth about $45,000, and is insured for its full value in the British and foreign syndicate companies. The boat is owned by the Wilson Transim company, of which Capt. Wilson is manager, and is only partially insured. She was commanded by Capt. Williams.

Cleveland, Nov. 8.—(Special to The Herald).—Capt. Thomas Wilson, owner of the Missoula, is still confident that the steamer has not been lost. Vessel owners here, however, do not share his confidence. He has a crew of sixteen men.

WHEAT CARGO COMING. The steamer Arablan, from Michigan, arrived today from Port Huron, and reports that it believed to be wreckage from the missing steamer Missoula coming ashore there. In passing out of the Quebec harbor on the south side of the island, the Arablan, the captain saw quite a quantity of white wreckage on Little Long Island.

VESSELS AGROUND.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 8.—(Special to The Herald).—The tugboat Standard Oil, which was aground near the Encampment, The Standard Oil tugboat, is also aground at the same place.

Later.—The schooner Tyrone and the Standard Oil tugboat No. 55, which were aground at the Encampment, were released this morning. While aground, the Tyrone was struck by a schooner, Ceylon and Augusta, bound down with wheat. The Tyrone and Ceylon were not damaged, but the Augusta suffered considerably. She now has two feet of water forward and part of her cargo is wet.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 8.—(Special to The Herald).—The steamer Gilchrist is aground at the foot of Corsica shoals. When the Hiawatha went on Middle Ground last night, opposite Sarnia, she ran out about ten inches.

A BATCH OF CHARTERS.

Cleveland, Nov. 8.—(Special to The Herald).—Wheat charters: Alva, Port William to Buffalo, 6 cents. Ore charters: Hesper, Port Huron to Chicago, 10 cents. Coal charters: Mohegan, Port Huron to Duluth, 45 cents.

MORE GROSSE POINT VICTIMS.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 8.—The steamer John F. Eddy was released from Grosse Point yesterday after lightening part of her cargo. She is now reloading. The steamer J. C. Gilchrist has also been released.

JOHN GORDON'S NEW LINE.

There seems to be a disposition in some quarters to throw doubt on the report, but those who know John Gordon best say that the execution of his plan to build two big steel freight and passenger steamers, one between Detroit and Buffalo is not only possible but highly probable, says the Detroit Free Press. Gordon is one of the best posted freight men on the lakes. He understands thoroughly the situation and has figured out to his own satisfaction and evidently to that of some others that he can make a new line of steamers pay. But he will have a hard fight on his hands, particularly if Cleveland should make a stopping point, as this would be an encroachment upon the field for nearly forty years monopolized by the Detroit and Cleveland steam navigation company. Manager Carter declares an intention to fight Mr. Gordon night and day in the event that this was Cleveland. The company has five steamers, he says, and if necessary can put on four of them between Detroit and Cleveland.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

land, doubling the route daily. Mr. Carter says it is a physical impossibility to leave Buffalo and Detroit each night and make a stop at Cleveland. With Cleveland left out it could be done so as to give each steamer seven hours in port. Manager Newman, of the Buffalo and Cleveland line also talks fight.

THE DREDGED VESSELS? The suit of A. F. Harriet & Co., of Detroit, against Steam Barge No. 14, turned upon the point whether a dredge should be considered a water craft, and as such liable to seizure for debt, under the state law, the same as vessels. Judge Hosmer held that a dredge is not a water craft within the legal definition of the term. Bartlett & Co. appealed to the supreme court. The decision of the lower court was affirmed.

AN IMPORTANT CASE. An action has been commenced in the United States district court at Detroit, in which Judge Swan will be called upon to determine who was responsible for the death of Capt. Ralph Hackett, John Catonach and David Kinrie, of the tug Tormentor, in the St. Clair canal last July. The suit is an action for $10,000 damages commenced by Bertha Kinrie, as administratrix of the estate of David Kinrie. The case will be looked upon by vessel men and those interested in admiralty questions as an exceedingly interesting one, and it is also an action of considerable importance to the owners of the steam barge Sitka and schooner Yukon, who are defendants.

THE INCREASED RATES. The action of marine underwriters in advancing the insurance of grain aboard A2 boats to 90 cents per $100 to Port Huron and to $1 to Buffalo, with 10 per cent additional for "average waived," has caused much ill feeling on the part of owners of low-grade vessels at Chicago. One of them is quoted as having said: "If the losses which the underwriters have experienced this season were on A2 vessels we would make no objection, but don't suppose we can help ourselves, but on A1 craft. Not a day goes by but there is a big loss on some steel steamer. I don't suppose we can help ourselves, but it seems hard that when we have the first good rate in several years we should be deprived of the advantage because the underwriters have taken such action."

MARINE NOTES.

The steamer R. R. Rhodes, loaded with grain, from Port William to Buffalo, put back and came into Duluth this morning expecting to go into dry dock because of an accident to her rudder. Upon examination it was found that the pin had been broken and it will be replaced and the boat will go out tomorrow night.

Capt. Inman has received a contract for another outfit to go to work on the Centurian's jettisoned copper, and the tug B. B. Inman will leave Sunday night.

Duluth clearances: Kearsarge, 1300 tons ore, 17a Onon, 76,000 bushels wheat, Avery, 57,000 bushels wheat, Buffalo. Recent gales have swept away the buoys placed over the sunken steamer Cayuga, and Capt. James Reld experiences difficulty in relocating the wreck. Low water made it necessary to lighten part of the ore cargo of the barge Lozen in order to get her into Ohio basin at Buffalo.

The steamer George King has broken her engine frame and is at Port Huron. Port Huron reports that the steamer Kittie M. Forbes ran aground near Port Gratiwick and was released by a tug.

While approaching Green Bay City with a coal cargo on Wednesday the barge J. G. Maston ran so hard aground that the tugs could not pull her off. The schooner Columbian, under seizure for debt, has sunk in Niagara river. A survey on the steamer business, now in dry dock at Detroit, makes her collision damage $3000. The worst cargo of the craft suffered the most damage.

The wrecking tug Swan has reached Collingwood with the steamer W. B. Hall, recently ashore in Mississauga strait, Lake Huron. The damage sustained by the steamer John Craig through striking Ballard's reef in Detroit river is being repaired at Buffalo.

WEST END

Prospecting For Coal Is In Progress Back of West Duluth.

Number of Specimens of Fairly Good Grade Have Been Found.

More Boats Arrive To Load Lumber—Some Future Church Socials.

A man who has had considerable experience in different kinds of mining has been examining some of the different formations in the hills back of West Duluth of late and has found a number of specimens which show quite a percentage of coal of a good grade for surface use. Further explorations will probably be made.

A few more boats have arrived to load lumber at the West Duluth docks. They are probably about the last to arrive for this season.

The West Duluth Land company's dredge is tied up, and all dredging work in St. Louis bay and river has stopped for this year, except that now being done at the Mississippi and Northern railway ore docks.

A concert and literary entertainment will be given at Great Eastern hall next Thursday evening for the benefit of the Hazelwood Park Presbyterian church. The performance of a wedding ceremony will be a novel feature of the entertainment, after which a general social time will be had.

The little daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Rumsdale is sick with typhoid fever. Frank Raley is confined to his room by sickness.

Allerman French, who has been very ill at his home in Oneota, is reported to be getting well.

The society of the Bethlehem Norwegian Lutheran church have their new church building enclosed, and expect to be able to complete it this season. The building, when finished, will be a neat and model church structure, and a credit to the society.

The society of the St. James Catholic church will give a concert and supper at Great Eastern hall for the benefit of the church Thanksgiving eve.

The old man who looks out the world with clear and healthy eyes cannot help feeling great gratification at the thought that his children have inherited from him no weakness or tendency to disease.

The healthy old man is the man who has throughout his life kept his digestion good and his blood pure. Not one in a thousand does so.

Germs go through the healthy body without effect. Let them find a weak spot, and they will develop by the million and the blood will be full of them. Instead of giving strength to the tissues, it will force upon them an unwholesome and untimely matter, and the man will lose flesh and the more susceptible he is to disease.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the only medicine that absolutely and infallibly cures all blood diseases, and almost all diseases are blood diseases. It is a medicine for the whole body. It forces out all the germs of disease, and replaces impurities with rich, red blood.

INDICTED

Grand Jury Returns True Bills Against a Number Of Offenders.

Bert Bellinger Must Answer To Manslaughter In the Second Degree.

Two Men In Jail Since Last May Were On the List.

The grand jury this morning returned a small batch of indictments, chief among which was one against young Bert Bellinger for manslaughter in the second degree for shooting John Stephenson, a playmate, a few weeks ago. The indictment charges culpable negligence, without design or malice, and states that the shooting was unjustified and inexcusable.

John Redmond and Pat Googan were indicted separately for escaping from an officer and jointly for grand larceny in the second degree for picking a woman's pocket last Decoration day. These men have lain in jail since that time, and have enjoyed but half a minute of liberty.

They were bound over to the last grand jury, and at that time they made an ineffectual dash for liberty. The grand jury found indictments against them at the September term, but by some hook or crook one of the members of the jury carried off the indictments and they were never returned. An attorney took hold of the matter, and asked for and received the release of the crooks because they had not been indicted. They joyfully started for the open air, but outside the door of the court room they were met by a sheriff's officer with a new warrant, and they were trotted back to jail.

James Whalen and Alexander McKenzie were indicted for grand larceny in the second degree for stealing goods from John Wilkey. William Bradley was indicted for assault in the second degree for shooting Andrew Olson at Duluth, Oct. 23. Pat McGrath was indicted for indecent assault upon Anna Kovelsky.

The Stuckey matter was taken up yesterday, but no indictment has yet been returned. This morning the case against Elmer Halling was under consideration.

An Odd Mistake.

At the last term of the United States court held here in October, Henry Michaud was found guilty of selling liquor to an Indian and was sentenced to a year's imprisonment. The newspapers containing the item found their way to Canada, and papers there seem to be of the opinion that there is only one Michaud in this part of the country, Alex. Michaud, the popular hotel man. They have been publishing the fact that the latter was sentenced to jail, and have been extending their sympathy. Alex. does not know exactly whether he ought to take it as a joke or look at it seriously. He has many friends in Canada, and does not want any of them to think he is wearing stripes when he is in fact very much at large.

WAS HOPKINS LIBELLED?*Chicago's Ex-Mayor Suing Chairman Tanner.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—The libel suit of ex-Mayor John P. Hopkins against John R. Tanner, chairman of the republican state central committee, during the campaign of 1894, came up for argument today. The case came up on the demurrer of the plaintiff to the plea filed by the defendant in January last, in which he urged that the circular he sent to the voters of the state, charging Mayor Hopkins with levying blackmail for political purposes upon the disreputables of the disreputables. In any case it was no part of the duty of Tanner or the state central committee to slander a man who was not before them for any office.

Judge Adams took the matter under advisement, and if he decides that the plea shows justification, the case of the ex-mayor will be dismissed. In that case, Hopkins will take an appeal.

Nashville, Nov. 9.—The Chicago Southern states excursion came into Nashville from an hour and half to five hours late, owing to some slight accidents to some of the locomotives. The trains of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois route were delayed about an hour and a half. The weather, which had been fine up till today, suddenly became heavy, and the excursionists landed in the same kind of a shower that they tried to escape from by leaving Chicago. The temperature was a few degrees higher, however, and some of the heavy overcoats were worn on the left arm.

The tourists were awakened by the booming of cannon, fired by the local military, and after a hurried breakfast, were escorted to the theater Vendome, where the only ceremonial part of the program, permitted by the weather, was

STRIKE AT SOUDAN.*The Machinists Demand an In-

Tower, Minn., Nov. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The machinists employed by the Minnesota Iron company went out on a strike yesterday to secure an advance of 25 cents per day, as they had not been included in those getting a 10 per cent raise not long ago. Their former wages ranged from $1.50 to $2.25, and the fact that the blacksmiths had demanded and received an increase only last Saturday, encouraged the machinists in their demands.

In view of the extreme scarcity of labor all through the iron districts, it is believed the men will get their advance. Other skilled employees contemplate asking for a raise soon.

He has sent a sort of ultimatum to the imperial government announcing his intention to advance on Peking should the answer prove unfavorable, said to number over 100,000 men.

Missoula Escaped From

She Was in a Sinking Condition.*The Bottom Appears to Have Dropped Out of Lake Erie.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The long overdue steamer Missoula, founded on Lake Superior last Saturday night, after drifting about in a disabled condition for two days. The crew took to the life boats and saved themselves, finally landing on the north shore of the lake. Capt. William Williams and four men reached here late last night in a small sail boat. The tug Booth left here this morning to bring the rest of the crew to this port. Capt. Williams absolutely refused to be interviewed and had instructed his men to say nothing to any one. The men, however, were inclined to be somewhat communicative and told the following story of the disaster.

The steamer's shaft broke Friday morning when many miles above White fish Point, and as there was considerable wind and sea, the steamer fell into the trough of the waves and rolled about helplessly. The wind was southwest and increased to a gale, driving her before it. The seams were opened and the steamer began leaking. Although the steam pumps worked to the full capacity, the leaks gained and at 9 o'clock Saturday night all hands took to the boats. The steamer was then fifteen miles northeast of Caribou Island. All night long the shipwrecked men drifted on Lake Superior in the freezing cold, and it was not until Sunday afternoon that they reached the shore.

They sighted land in the vicinity of Gargentou harbor, fifteen miles north of this point, and were cared for by the people of the place. Early in the week the crew started again on their way to Sault Ste. Marie and succeeded so well that they reached Lizard Island, many miles on their way. There, however, nearly all the crew remained, and the captain, chief engineer, second mate, wheelman, and a watchman manned the boats and, hoisting a signal, managed to reach port last night.

Later—The steamer Telegram left at 6 o'clock this morning for Lizard Island to bring down the remainder of the crew of the Missoula. For five years up to the present season no insurance was carried on the Wilson fleet, but this year all the vessels were partly insured. The $50,000 insurance with C. A. McDonald & Co. of Chicago, is all the insurance there is on the steamer, although she was rated at $50,000.

WATER IS VERY LOW.
Buffalo, Nov. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The water in the harbor today is the lowest on record. The harbor is full of boats which are on the bottom. Water in Lake Erie is now lower than it has been for many years. Apparently the bottom is being worn out of the lake. The high water mark of 1838 is used as the plane of reference in the markings of the Lake Erie levels and is marked zero. During the fifteen years from 1860 to 1875 the mean level of the lake at Cleveland was 2.74 feet below the high water mark of 1838. In July last year the level was about normal—2.38 feet. In November a year ago it had fallen to 3.48 feet. The level has been gradually falling this summer. In June it was 3.54 feet, in October 4.31 feet. For the week just ended it has averaged 4.51 feet below the zero mark of 1838.

THE CENTURION'S COPPER.

The steamer Dixon yesterday brought in news from the expedition which is now at work on the Centurion's jetted copper mine Royak. Thursday the tug Williams and outfit had secured five tons of copper and the outlook was good for recovering nearly the whole of it if the weather holds fair. The dynamite schooner Chris Grover had secured a load of flour and the Singer tug Mariel had also picked up quite a quantity. The tug B. B. Inman and another outfit will leave here tomorrow night to go to work on the copper.

The Dixon reports that ice is forming on the north shore, between Isle Royale and the mainland.

HANGED FOR MURDER.*Might Have Escaped Had He Not Spoken.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 9.—William Newman, a white man, and once a prominent farmer was hanged at Clinton, Van Buren county, yesterday for the murder of his wife. Mrs. Newman was murdered on Aug. 8 last, and the body thrown in a creek. At the wife's funeral, while standing by the grave, surrounded by mourners, Newman exclaimed: "Before God, I never murdered my wife."

This led to his arrest and conviction on circumstantial evidence, it being shown that Newman wanted to get rid of her in order to marry another woman. When sentence was passed, Newman streamed down his cheeks and he exclaimed: "God be my judge, I never saw my wife after leaving home on Sunday, until I saw her in the creek. Newman made no attempt to secure a new trial or executive clemency.

Huntington, Ind., Nov. 9.—Edward Morris and wife, who have been on trial here for murder of their 6-year-old daughter, last March, were today acquitted on account of a defect in the indictment.

TO PREVENT LYNCHING.

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 9.—The principal action taken by the convention today was the paragraph relating to anti-lynching, which provides that if any prisoner in charge of a sheriff or other county or municipal officers is taken from such officer through his permission or connivance, and suffers bodily harm, or death, such officer shall be removed from office, and shall be ineligible to office if on trial he is convicted.

WATER IS VERY LOW.

Buffalo, Nov. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The water in the harbor today is the lowest on record. The harbor is full of boats which are on the bottom. Water in Lake Erie is now lower than it has been for many years. Apparently the bottom is being worn out of the lake. The high water mark of 1838 is used as the plane of reference in the markings of the Lake Erie levels and is marked zero. During the fifteen years from 1860 to 1875 the mean level of the lake at Cleveland was 2.74 feet below the high water mark of 1838. In July last year the level was about normal—2.38 feet. In November a year ago it had fallen to 3.48 feet. The level has been gradually falling this summer. In June it was 3.54 feet, in October 4.31 feet. For the week just ended it has averaged 4.51 feet below the zero mark of 1838.

SILVER'S DEMONETIZATION.

The St. Paul Pioneer Press took a column of space yesterday to tell its readers that "free silver is dead" and henceforth only gold monometallism will prevail. Such statements have been made by the goldbug papers before. On numerous occasions they have declared that "the silver craze" had subsided, but —somehow or other, free silver has proved to be a devilishly lively corpse.
And so it will continue to be until the gold standard policy has been replaced in this country by genuine bimetalism.

Right will always prevail, and at some time in the not distant future silver will be restored to its rightful place alongside gold as redemption money.

But although the Pioneer Press says that "free silver is dead," it appears to be much disturbed by the facts which Mr. Harvey presented in Duluth the other night, in reply to Mr. McCleary, proving that silver is not demonetized, 1873 secretly and without the knowledge of congress or the people of this country.

"Explored lies" is what it calls the proofs presented by Mr. Harvey, and it makes light of his offer of $100 for a copy of a newspaper of February, 1873, which published the fact that congress had closed the mints to the free coinage of silver. If newspapers did not publish the fact, it asks, what does that prove? Why didn't they publish it? "Simply," it declares, "because there was no crime;
there was no stealth. Nobody at that time in the wide universe cared a cent
for farthing whether silver was demonetized or not. For scarcely anybody ever seen a silver dollar. No coin had been in circulation for nearly that many years."

Therefore, according to the Pioneer
Press, there was no crime committed.
This claim is similar to that made in a pamphlet published some time ago by Horace White, editor of the New York
Evening Post, from which the Pioneer Press has apparently derived most of its knowledge of the money question. This is the pamphlet in which Mr. White, with characteristic goldbug courtousness, calls his adversary a fool. Mr. White said that "the demonetization of silver
did not destroy a dollar of redemption money." It is easy to prove that this statement is incorrect. Every one must admit that until the act of 1873 was passed, every ounce of silver that could be mined in the United States or procured from any part of the world, was potential redemption money. This quality was derived from the fact that under the laws of the United States the owners of silver bullion could take the same to the mint and have the metal coined into standard dollars, which were an unlimited legal tender. When acts were passed by which this unlimited legal tender character was removed and the standard dollar of 412 1/2 grains was struck from the list of legal tender coins, silver ceased to be available as a debt-paying metal and was effectually demonetized.

But the Pioneer Press says nobody cared whether silver was demonetized because the silver dollar had not been in circulation for thirty-five years. It is a sufficient answer to this assertion to say that as soon as it was discovered that silver had been demonetized there arose
a protest from one end of the country to the other, and ever since there has been a steadily growing demand, which all the efforts of the gold monometallists have not stilled, that silver be remonetized
and the nation return to the bimetalism that had always been in force prior to the act of 1873. The fact that the right to take silver bullion to the mint and have it freely coined was practically un-exercised for a long time does not make the deprivation of that right any less harmful. The coinage of silver ceased and it was shipped abroad in the form of bullion, because the legal tender silver of the United States, at the ratio of 16 to 1, was undervalued as compared with the silver of the Latin Union, which was minted at the ratio of 15 1/2 to 1. This was the reason that the silver dollar was not in circulation here, and not because the people had a distaste for or distrust of silver. There is as much reason for asserting that the people rejected gold, because the gold that was coined between 1861 and 1873 nearly all disappeared from the country and none of it went into circulation until 1878.

The Pioneer Press also says "there was no crime, there was no stealth" when silver was demonetized in 1873. The Congressional Records of 1876 and 1878
are filled with the statements of congressmen that silver was demonetized by the act of 1873 without their knowledge,
and consequently it was done stealthily.

Senator Allison, of Iowa, said: "But when the secret history of this bill of 1873 comes to be told it will disclose the fact that the house of representatives intended to coin both gold and silver, and intended to place both metals upon the French relation instead of our own,
which was the true scientific position in reference to this subject in 1873, but that bill afterward was doctored." (Congressional Record, vol. 7, part 2, second session, 1873.) Will the Pioneer Press read these words uttered by the senator from Iowa, and then have the hardihood to assert that there was no stealth?

THE TORRENS SYSTEM.

The Torrens system, which the Torrens law obtained in last Tuesday's election in Cook county, Illinois, shows that the people are very much in favor of the introduction of that system of land transfers. It is not astonishing that public sentiment is strongly in favor of establishment of this system, because of the many advantages it possesses over the antiquated, cumbersome and expensive system that now prevails all over the country. There was an effort made several years ago to have the Torrens system introduced in Minnesota, and the legislature went so far as to appoint a commission to investigate the matter and report to the next session. The commission held a few meetings, and finally made a report that was of an astonishing character.

It found that the Torrens system was excellent, but it feared that no law
could be framed to apply it satisfactorily to this state. In the latter remark there appears "the fine Italian hand" of the abstract men who are opposed to the Torrens system.

The question was permitted to drop,
but the sentiment which was created in favor of the system had not died out.
Every person in Minnesota who is acquainted with the advantages of the Torrens system would be glad to have it enacted here. The victory for the system in Illinois should stimulate its Minnesota friends to make another campaign in favor of it and to keep up the fight until success has been obtained.

Under the Torrens system, when a title is once registered there is no need of searching through ancient records to trace an unbroken succession of deeds, for a simple certificate does the whole thing. Everybody who has ever dealt with real estate, whether in Cook county or any other American city, knows how the cost of the abstract
helps to swell the collateral expenses of such a transaction. A commission from the Chicago Real Estate board has estimated the average cost of an abstract and legal examination in Cook county at $25 for each transfer. It admits the cost under the new system,
after the first registration, at $3 for a transfer. It estimated that for Cook county under present methods at $10,000-000 a year.

The saving of expense is but one advantage. Under the Torrens system it will be possible to sell a piece of property, examine the title and complete the transaction within an hour. With the existing method it often takes weeks and sometimes months to make a transfer involving any considerable amount. Facility in making transfers enhances the value of real estate for use as security. The Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin says: "There is a story to the effect that a Milwaukee man once received a $300 bill for the abstract necessary to conclude a $15,000 transaction in Chicago real estate. Presently the charges in Duluth for abstracts have reached enormous figures in comparison with the value of the property involved."

The Torrens system has given great satisfaction wherever it has been used,
and there is even talk in England of making it obligatory. In Illinois it will be entirely optional with the owners of real estate, but it will not be long before all property owners will avail themselves of the opportunity of registering their realty under the system, because the Torrens certificates of title will be preferred to all others on account of their simplicity and inexpensiveness.

When the system was introduced in Manitoba ten years or so ago it was made optional with the owners of real estate. Now a large proportion of the realty in that country is registered under that system, which has worked splendidly. The law adopted in Illinois can be applied to Minnesota without any difficulty, and the next legislature of this state should not fail to adopt it.

EXPRESS MONEY ORDERS.

The News Tribune yesterday attacked
the issue of money orders by express companies, on the plea that it is the exercise of a function that properly and exclusively belongs to the banks. It would be interesting to learn when the laws of the country conferred upon the banks a monopoly of exchange. Will the morning paper point out where such a monopoly has been established by either the laws of commerce or of the country?

The issuing of money orders by the express companies has been denied constantly for the past fifteen years. It is a business that has constantly grown,
and undoubtedly the bankers have grown jealous of the profits which the express companies are making out of this department of their business, and consequently are anxious to secure it for themselves. There is no objection to the bank entering into competition for a share of this business, but they must compete as do firms and individuals engaged in other lines of business. A wholesale house, the only of its kind in a city, would have no more right to demand that no other wholesale firm be permitted to do business in competition with it than have the banks to demand that the express companies shall not be allowed to do a money order business. If this demand were granted, the banks would probably next insist that the money order department of the postoffice be abolished as an infringement upon their business rights.

The whole idea is absurd and so opposed to all business principles that it is astonishing that any person should make such a claim on behalf of the banks.

The money order business of the express companies has grown because of its popularity. Business men and the public generally regard express money orders as a great convenience in their social and commercial relations, and they will oppose any attempt to interfere with this feature of the express companies' business. These orders are simple and convenient and are sent at a moderate charge. Another convenience to the public is that express offices are open usually from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m., while the banks are open for business only from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. It is impossible for many people, except at great inconvenience, to visit the banks at such hours. Again, there are but 5000 cities and towns in the United States enjoying banking privileges, while there are over 30,000 express offices. This means that there are 25,000 communities which must depend solely upon the express companies for transfer of their money in settlement of accounts with business houses in other cities. The banks cannot transmit money to or from these communities. The express companies do. This is an instance of the great injury that would be inflicted upon the public should the banks' claim of the monopoly of exchange be admitted.

The statement of the News Tribune that the express companies pay little taxes and carry no bank accounts is untrue. The express companies pay as much taxes proportionately as do the banks. They also carry bank accounts, and if the News Tribune had inquired at the First National and other banks in Duluth it would have discovered this fact.

The course of events has recently brought to subject of foreign missions into great prominence, with the result that it has been discussed on the platform and in the press on both sides of the Atlantic. Much that has been said and written has been of quite an unfriendly character, and several persons of prominence notably some of the speakers of the British association—have been disposed to view this effort of the Christian church men in the light of an attempt (essentially secular in its ultimate purposes) on the part of the Western nations to impose their civilization upon other peoples of the world, rather than in the light of a religious duty with relation to the spiritual destiny of the race at large.

The editor of the North American Review has solicited a contribution on the subject from the Rev. Judson Smith, D.D., secretary of the American board,
which will appear probably in the January number.

In the November issue of the North American Review there is an article by Austin Corbin again calling attention to the scheme of shortening the steaming distance between London and New York by having steamers run to and from Fort Pond bay, at the eastern end of Long Island. The gain of time thus figured out by the Queenstown route to London is fifteen hours and forty-seven minutes, and by the Southampton route one day, eight hours and eleven minutes. This would be a material gain and would put mails that leave New York Saturday morning in London on the following Friday evening, thus making it possible to get off replies to letters on the Saturday's returning steamer.

New York campaigns are usually expensive, but more money was spent during the recent campaign than in any other for canvass for local office. The reward which attends success at the polls is represented by the sum of $132,500, the aggregate salaries for one year of the candidates on the county ticket. To secure this yearly return for periods ranging from three to fourteen years the different political organizations have expended $225,000. Tammany raised a fund of $35,000 and expended every cent of it.

Frigitheapeutic treatment is the newest. It has been originated by Professor Raoul Picot, of Berlin, and consists, as the name indicates, in the application of frigidity to disease. The professor says he cured himself of dysentery by this method in a refrigerator in which he had reduced the temperature to minus 105 degrees centi-grade. In other words, it was a cold day when he was cured.

The Cincinnati Post points out that the frequent comment that journalism is a comparatively unremunerative pro-

the case of Henri Rochefort, who is con-

by an American publisher for the exclusive right to publish in this country
the stirring story of his career which a Paris journal is now printing in serial form.

WHAT AILS THE PEOPLE?

The True Cause of Most Physical Troubles Made Perfectly Clear.

"What are the principal ailments of the American people?" This question was recently put by a reporter to Dr. Ephraim Cutler, whose name stands foremost in the ranks of the medical profession. His answer was:
"Bright's disease."

"The great increase of this fearful malady is attracting universal attention.
Everyone is anxious to know how it is brought on. 'What causes it, doctor?'
The physician paused for a few minutes before replying, and then said: 'It can best explain that by a very simple illustration. Anyone who eats beefsteak knows what is fat and what is lean. Now, if the muscle of the steak is partially changed to fat, it is called 'fatty degeneration.' In the same way, with the human body, if the kidney substance changes into fat, it is called 'Bright's disease.' Bright's disease is fatty degeneration of the kidney. It is a disease which is free from some sort of kidney or liver disease."

"May I ask if there is any cure of these complaints?" the reporter inquired.
"Yes," replied the doctor, "there is, if the patient is treated at the right time and at the right place. As a rule, it is only when they break down, lose appetite, and the complexion sallow, a constant while coughing on the tongue, and inflamed eyes that they suspect anything is wrong.
American genius has found it possible to arrest disease of the liver and kidneys, and to positively cure Bright's disease. The discovery of Warner's Safe Cure has been a Godsend to the world. There are thousands of men and women who are alive today and are kept in health entirely through its use. This fact is now known and admitted by physicians in every portion of the globe."

"The words of the doctor are true and they demand the serious consideration of everyone who reads these lines. Bright's disease is, undoubtedly, the most alarming of all our modern diseases. It often comes without warning, has few symptoms of its own, but shows the signs of other ailments. Any man or woman who is at all 'out of sorts,' or who should not hesitate for it is a well-known truth that 'delays are dangerous.'"

mighty dollar counts for so much, the training is of first-rate importance."

PHYLIS AND HER SHOE.

When Phyllis stoops to tie her shoe,
The love descends with flit and flutter,
And circle round, though hid to view,
Till the role I dare not utter:
And oh, ho, it is love's frolic time!
The slender foot, whose swiftness rhyme,
And send perfection home to rankle
In lover's mind like arrow true,
When Phyllis stoops to tie her shoe?

When Phyllis stoops to tie her shoe,
And meet the moment's boudoir,
Happy the passing whoa!
None than her tiring maids are good for—
Stand all attention covertly,
And pray the gods prolong their blisses:
Whereat Leo Cupid roguishly
Doth knot the string her foot that kisses:
Ah, many the tugs, and blushes, too,
When Phyllis stoops to tie her shoe!

When Phyllis stoops to tie her shoe,
And flies white true to all observers,
I needs must gaze, thrilled through and through,
And die for love, though not deserve
it:
Love's science leads me to give,
If from her foot her whole perfection,
And faint I kneel, as at a shrine,
And pour her out a heart's affection.
Ah, Phyllis, take my heart-string, do,
And knit them in to your shoe!

ISSUES

Facts to be Determined in the Mendenhall Case Settled Today.

The Jury Will Determine Some and the Court the Others.

Mrs. Mendenhall Has Filed the Bill of Particulars as Directed.

Before Judge Moer, in special term of district court this morning, the application of Ellen R. Mendenhall to frame a set of issues for the jury in the Mendenhall divorce case came up, and its argument occupied a large portion of the morning. The set as originally prepared, consisting of eight questions, of which six were on the issue of adultery, was submitted, but Mr. Washburn stated that he was willing to weld these questions into one general one of whether or not adultery was committed between 1891 and 1893 by Mendenhall and Miss Hardy.

W. W. Billson strenuously objected to sending the issues of cruelty and desertion to the jury, as he said that the jury system was not suited to such delicate issues, as these would be. The issue of adultery he was willing to submit to the jury. Mr. Washburn thought that Mr. Billson's remarks were directed against the jury system in general, and that the objections would apply to any case as well as this one.

Judge Moer thought with Mr. Billson, however, and the motion to frame issues was denied as to those of cruelty and desertion and granted as to that of adultery. The case has been set by stipulation for Monday at 2, when the issue for the jury will be tried. Afterward the remaining issues will be tried before the court.

The bill of particulars demanded by the defendant was filed yesterday, and it speaks of adultery with B. Hardy, committed at the Palmer house, Chicago, in the first half of the month of April, or at some other place to the plaintiff known at the Hotel school during the last of April or the first part of May, 1892, and during June and August, 1893, and at Pike Lake during the summer of 1893.

Judge Moer took the application of Page Morris for the allowance of his final account as assignee of James Billings under advisement. Judge Morris resigned this position because of his appointment to the bench.

THE SCHOFIELD CASE.
The case of Mrs. Elizabeth Schofield against the Duluth Gas and Water company, to secure an injunction for preventing the company from shutting the water off from 222 East Superior street, was on trial before Judge Moer this morning. The company claims that the Schofields "swiped" water from their connections to supply a house on the rear of their lot without paying for it.

This morning the prisoners indicted yesterday were arraigned before Judge Moer to listen to the reading of their indictments, and were each given until Monday morning at 2, when the trial grand jury yesterday afternoon adjourned until Monday without presenting any more indictments.

THE COURT FILINGS.
Page Morris' Final Report in the Billings Case.

Page Morris' final report as assignee for James Billings, which was filed yesterday, presents a truly deplorable state of insolvency. The liabilities are $319,218.18, and the nominal assets are $345,641.54, but the great part of the latter are entirely worthless, consisting of stocks in dead iron companies, bills against insolvents, etc. But $40,777.06 of claims have been filed with the assignee. The amount collected is $175.41, of which $127.95 has been paid out, leaving $47.46 to turn over to the successor.

The application for a receiver for the Masonic Temple association and for the sequestration of its property, has been dismissed without prejudice by stipulation. The assignee of the association this morning filed a list of assets and liabilities. The only asset is the Masonic Temple, which is valued at $135,000, and is encumbered by a first mortgage for $88,743.73 held by the Penn Mutual Life Insurance company, a second mortgage of $40,000 securing other claims, and unpaid taxes of $326.42. The liabilities, consisting of notes, mortgages and judgments, amount to $122,291.09.

George A. Elder has brought four suits against the owners and claimants of four pieces of property on the range, for the partition of the first and for the sale without partition of the other three pieces. All are valued at $5 an acre, aside from prospective and undeveloped possibilities of ore deposits. The tracts are as follows: Land in 58-17, 20, 59-16, 21, composed of 680 acres, valued at $3400; 520 acres in 58-14, valued at $2900; 240 acres in 58-17, valued at $1700; 40 acres in 58-17, valued at $200. Elder is a part owner of all these properties and claims that they are aggregated much more than their stated values.

Rhoda Anderson has sued John Anderson for divorce on the grounds of cruelty, non-support and desertion. She is 23 and he is 32, and they were married in St. Paul in September, 1893. He is alleged to have deserted her in July, 1894. William Colville is the attorney.

Bradley & Hanford have sued M. C. Burke and W. D. Dwyer for $400 on a note. N. A. and H. G. Garhart are the attorneys.

THE TEACHERS' SALARIES.

Mr. Cobb Replies to a G. A. R. Column Writer.

To the Editor of The Herald:
In last Saturday's Herald some one writing in the G. A. R. column over his initials only, took me to task for some statements which I made in the "Trades assembly" concerning the expenditure of money by the board of education. These statements were in reality a summary of an itemized report compiled from the records by our secretary, A. La Richeux, to whom both credit and thanks have been given. Any interested person is cordially invited to drop into the office of the board and examine the report for himself.

The writer of the communication to which I refer is very much mistaken in his attempt to show that my statements were misleading. He says in substance that while the board may have expended most of its money from the general and building funds here in the city, I ignore the tuition fund altogether, and thereby leave a false impression upon the public. Now as a matter of fact we have no such thing as a "tuition fund." All moneys received by the board of education from all sources go into one of three—the building fund, the general fund and the sinking fund. Teachers' salaries come from the general fund and no other. The fact that some of our teachers who have lived and worked in this city ten months out of twelve, go out of town for two months, did not occur to me as a sufficient reason for considering their salaries as expended out of town. I might add that the substance of that letter furnishes an amusing illustration of the fact that some people can create a grievance when no facts exist upon which to base one. With gratitude for your kindness, I am, yours truly, E. R. Cobb, Duluth, Nov. 9.

THE GROSS CLAIM.

A Large Offer Received by Rouchleau-Ray Company.

The Emil Gross claim, which recently passed out of the hands of Gross, the original homesteader, to the Rouchleau-Ray Iron and Land company for a consideration of $25,000 cash, has had a new valuation placed on it by the present owner, and a large offer has been received by responsible people. It is expected a deal will be closed in a few days.

Exploration since the transfer has been pushed with a vim characteristic of the Rouchleau-Ray company, and eight test pits, bottomed in solid ore, were a result. The land is two and a half miles south of Virginia and lies directly northwest and adjoining the famous Adams property. It is described as 120 acres in 28-18. The claim was won by Gross originally after a hard fight in the local land office here. There were several claimants and contestants, but Land Officers Nichols and Frazer decided in favor of Gross, and in favor of Gross, who received his patent a short time ago. Gross actually resided on the place and had his home there. It was through the digging of a well for domestic purposes that the first discovery of iron was made.

Hartman's Patent Here.

Emil Hartmann's patent for the sale of the NW 1/4 of section 20-23-11 arrived at the United States land office today. It is described as 120 acres in 28-18, Valentine scrip. The land is that awarded to him under the decision of the section 30 case by the secretary.

Carlson's at Trouble.

There has all sorts of trouble in the Carlson family last night, and Frank Carlson and A. Carlson grew so heated in the debate that they carried on a fist discussion in the street. In consequence both were fined $5 and costs this morning by Judge Edson on a charge of fighting in the street.

Then Frank Condon, who claimed he had been "only a trifle drunk," was rewarded for his moderation with a suspended sentence, and John H. Manson, who pleaded guilty and had nothing particular to say was fined $10 and costs.

Peterelle is Held.

Yesterday afternoon in the police court Judge Edson held Mike Peterelle to the grand jury under $500 bonds on the charge of assaulting Thomas Capperelli. Tony Rose, who was charged with some indicated, was discharged. About a dozen Italian witnesses aired their knowledge of the case, with the aid of an interpreter. The alleged assault was committed at Casey, on the Mesaba road.

When he awoke last night he found himself minus his pipe, knife and $5 in money. In consequence Peter was locked up by Sergt. Donovan on the charge of petty larceny, and the knife and pipe were found in his possession, although he persists that he does not know how the articles came there. He was much surprised when they were fished out of his pockets.

Russian Story Relating Why
the Ears of the Ass
Are So Long.

Curious Bohemian Legend
About the Mouse and the Cat.

Nearly all the world seems to concur in regarding Friday as an inauspicious day. To begin any work on the sixth day of the week, or to start on a journey is a sure presage of evil to come. This superstition lingers even among educated people, but its origin dates back to very early periods, says the Philadelphia Times.

The day was consecrated by the old Slavonians to some goddess akin to Venus or Freya, and her worship in ancient times accounts for the superstition now connected with the name of Friday. In Russia, formerly, the day was consecrated to Slav, the Lithuanian Sevea, a Slavonic goddess answering to Ceres. In Christian times the personality of the goddess became merged in that of St. Paraskevia, and she is now frequently addressed by the modern descendants of her ancient worshippers, by the compound name of "Mother Pyatitsa-Paraskevia."

As she is supposed to wander about the houses of the peasants on her holy day and to be offended if she finds certain kinds of work going on, there are (or at least they used to be) frequently suspended on Fridays. It is a sin, says a time-honored tradition, for a woman to sew or spin, or weave or back linen on a Friday and similarly for a man to plait, baste shoes, twine cord and the like. Spinning and weaving are especially obnoxious to "Mother Friday," for the dust and refuse thus produced injure her eyes. When this is done in spite of her, she revenges herself by plagues of sore eyes, whitlows and agnals. In some places the villagers go to bed early on Friday evening, believing that St. Pyatinka will punish all whom she finds awake when she roams through the cottages. In others they sweep their floor every Thursday evening, so that she may not be annoyed by dust or the like when she comes next day. As for any work done on a Friday, it is sure to go wrong. Nearly all familiar animals figure in the folk lore of primitive peoples, and their individual peculiarities are often accounted for with great ingenuity. Curious legend explains the long ears of the ass in this wise:

At the time when the Lord created the world he also made all the animals and gave each one its name. When the ass was finished it said, "Lord, what is my name?" "Your name is Ass," the ass went away well pleased, but after awhile it forgot its name and went back to the Lord. "Lord, what is my name?" "Ass."

Soon it came back again. "Excuse me, Lord, what is my name?" "Ass, Ass!" The ass turned and went away, but forgot it another time and came back. "Lord, I have forgotten my name!" The Lord could not stand it any longer, but seized its ears, and pulled them sharply, exclaiming, "Ass! Ass! Ass!" The ears were pulled so hard that they stretched and that is why the ass has long ears; and why you pull a person's ears to keep him from forgetting a thing.

The Russian peasants have a singular legend about the sparrows and swallows to explain the favor with which the latter are so regarded, and the ill-repute of the former.

When the Jews were seeking for Christ in the garden, the legend, all the birds except the sparrow tried to draw them away from his hiding place. Only the sparrow attracted them thither by its shrill chirruping. Then the Lord cursed the sparrow, and forbade that men should eat of its flesh. In other parts of Russia tradition tells that before the crucifixion the swallows carried off the nails protruding for the use of the executioners, but the sparrows brought them back. And while our Lord was hanging on the cross the sparrows were maliciously exclaiming: "Jilt! Jilt!" or "He is living! He is living!" in order to urge on the tormentors to fresh cruelties. But the swallows cried, with opposite intent, "Umet! Umet!" "He is dead! He is dead!" Therefore it is that to kill a swallow is a sin, and that its nest brings good luck to a house. But the sparrow is an unwelcome guest, whose entry into a cottage is a presage of evil. As punishment for its sins, its legs have been fastened together by invisible bonds and therefore it always hops, not being able to run.

According to an old Lithuanian tradition the shape of the sole is due to the fact that the queen of the Baltic sea once ate one-half of it and threw the other half back into the sea again.

A legend from a Kherson government accounts for it as follows: At the time of the Angelical Salutation, the blessed virgin told the Archangel Gabriel that she would give credit to his words, "If a fish, one side of which had already been eaten, were to come to life again." That very moment the fish came to life and was put back in the water. The flesh of the horse is considered unclean because when the infant Savior lay in the manger the horse kept eating the hay under which the babe lay concealed, whereas the ox not only would not touch it, but brought hay on its horns to replace what the horse had eaten.

The Old Ritualists will not eat the cray-fish, holding that it was created by the devil. On the other hand, the snake is highly esteemed, for tradition says that when the devil, in the form of a mouse, had gnawed a hole in the ark, and thereby endangered the safety of Noah and his family, the snake stopped up the leak with his head.

According to a Bohemian legend, the devil created the mouse, that it might destroy "God's corn," whereupon the Lord created the cat.

A Norse tradition explains why the tail of the salmon is so fine and thin. When the gods went to catch Loke and punish him as the instrument of Balder's death, he changed himself into a salmon and jumped into a river. The gods made a net and dragged the river with it to catch him, but he slipped over the net and was making for the open sea when Thor caught him in his hand. He was very slippery, and would have escaped even then, had not Thor held him fast by the tail, ever since which the tails of salmon are fine and slim.

WHERE TO BUY GORHAM SILVER:

Don't look for it among the "Silvery" silver of the dry-goods stores, offered at half the price of Bullion. Suspicion instantly attaches to all such wares, no matter what they are stamped, or by whom they are sold. ***** On the contrary, the proprietor of any first-class jewelry store in the U. S. will stake his personal reputation upon the sterling quality of GORHAM Silver. *****

The existence of hills is accounted for in legendary lore in this wise: When the Lord was about to fashion the face of the earth he ordered the devil to dive in the watery depths and bring up a handful of the soil he found at the bottom. The devil obeyed, but when he filled his hand he filled his mouth also. The Lord took the soil, sprinkled it around, and the hills appeared, all perfectly flat. The devil, whose mouth was quite full, looked on for some time in silence. At last he tried to speak, but choked and died in terror. After him followed the thunder and the lightning, and so he rushed over the whole surface of the earth, hills springing up where he coughed, and sky-clearing mountains where he leaped. Many singular theories have been framed by primitive people to account for the origin of man. The inhabitants of Thibet have one which suggests the Darwinian conception of our cousinship with the apes. Once upon a time in Thibet the three gods held council to determine how the country should be peopled. The first one showed in a speech that the propagation of the human race could not be secured unless one of them turned himself into an ape. The third of the gods did this, and the goddess, Kadroma, was persuaded to change herself into a female ape. The plan succeeded, and from these progenitors have sprung the whole human family. The Norse idea is that men were created from trees. Into which Odin breathes spirit and life, reminding us of the Moslem narrative. The first man's name was Ask (ash) and the first woman's Embla (elm).

There is a tradition among the North American Indians to account for the origin of woman, which is even more humiliating to the sex than the rib theory. This legend says that originally all men were created with long sleek and comely tails. These tails were their delight, and they adorned them with paint, beads and wampum. The devil, who was at peace, discord and wars were unknown. Men became proud and forgot their Maker, and He, to punish them, sent them a scourge to teach them humility and make them realize their dependence on the Great Spirit. He animated their tails, and out of these dejected members fashioned women, who, say the Kichiksoos, retain traces yet of their origin, for we find them ever trailing after men, frisky and impulsive.

Among other wide-spread superstitions is one that the tears of the living are able to affect the dead. The Persian believed that the rivers of the living and world grew by the tears of the living and interfered with the happiness of the departed. And the Norse peasant still believes that when a daughter weeps for the death of her father she must take care that no tear falls on his corpse, for the departed soul will be disturbed. There is an old Norse song of Asaga and Elze, which says:

"Whenever thou grievest,
My coffin is within
As livid blood;
Whenever thou rejoicest
My coffin is within Filled with fragrant roses."

There are numerous interpretations of the rainbow and the milky-way, some of which are very poetical and beautiful.

It is an old Christian legend that Christ ascended to heaven by the milky-way and ever since it has shown in memory of His ascension, so beautiful and bright.

The Winnebagoes of North America believe it to be the path of the dead, along which the souls of the departed travel to reach their paradise in the sky. In German folklore we find the idea connected with the rainbow, and among many other people it suggested the idea of a bridge or a heaven ladder.

The Israelites called the rainbow the bow of Jehovah in the clouds; the Hindu called it the bow of Rama; the Flinn the bow of Thiermes, the Thunderer, who slays with it the sorcerers who hunt after men's lives. It is also described as a head-dress of feathers, a gold-embroidered scarf, St. Bernard's crown, or a sickle of an Ethiopian deity.

Some savage tribes regard it as a monster. In Dahome it is called Dant, the Heavenly Snake, which makes the pope heads and confers wealth on man. The Zulu believes that the rainbow lives with the snake, and that when it touches earth it is drinking in a pool. He is afraid to bathe in a large pool from fear of being caught by it and eaten. When it comes out of the water it rests on the ground, bringing disease and corruption. The Karens of Birren believe that it devours men, and ascribe to it nearly all violent deaths. After devouring persons it becomes thirsty and comes down to drink, and then it can be seen in the sky drinking water. New Zealand mythology describes the battle of the tempest and the forest, and tells how the rainbow arose and placed its mouth close to Tane-Mahuta, the Father of Trees, and continued to assault him till his trunk was snapped in two and his branches broken and strewn on the ground.

The North American Indians have a most aesthetic conception of the rainbow than this and one more in harmony with it as it appears to us. Longfellow has embodied it in his "Hiawatha," where he tells how he "Saw the rainbow in the heaven.

The eastern sky thick rainbows
Whispered: 'What is that, Nokomis?'

'Tis the heaven of flowers you see there:
All the wild flowers of the forest,
All the lilies of the prairie,
When on earth they fade and perish,
Blossom in that heaven of rainbows."

A favorite idea among primitive races is that the land of death and the departed is in the land of the evening star, and its entrance the gates of sunset. The Algonkians have a beautiful sunset myth. One of the Ojibwa had just killed a bear and began to skin him when suddenly something red tinged all the air around. Reaching the shore of a lake the Indian saw it was a beautiful red swan, whose plumage glittered in the sun. In vain the hunter shot his shafts, for the bird floated on unharmed and unheeding, but at last he remembered three magic arrows at home, which he hastily procured. The first and second arrow flew near and nearer; the third struck the swan, and discharging its wings it flew off slowly toward the setting sun, dyeing the sky and sea crimson in its flight. This myth also has been beautifully told by Longfellow:

"Can it be the sun descending
O'er the level plain of water?
Or the red swan, floating, flying,
Wounded by the magic arrow,
Sailing all the way with crimson
With the crimson of its life-blood,
Filling all the air with splendor,
With the splendor of its plumage?"

A myth relating to the seasons was the one that the sun and moon were once on for some time in silence. In Germany and England, that of serving up at dinner on a dish of the ornamental bear's head. Originally this symbolized the gloomy monster of lunar winter, killed by the sun, and the days of the year grew always longer and brighter. After a while the significance of this dreamy tale faded, but it continued to be a time-honored custom for many ages.

A curious custom of the German peasantry has a similar origin. They often go to sleep on Christmas night in the pesty, hoping to dream there. This dream is a presage of good luck. For this new sun is born in the sty of the winter hog. Even the Christian Redeemer was born in a stable. But in this case, instead of the hog, it was the ass, its mythical equivalent, that occupied it. In German legendary lore, the devil often assumes the form of a monstrous boar, which the hero kills, he being, of course, a solar hero, the all-powerful sun of spring.

Analogies which are to us mere fancies were to the men of the past realities, and every phenomenon in nature was to the primitive mind the emblem of some concrete and living personality. This it is that gives a vital and ever-growing interest to mythology and folk-lore.

Fashions Have Run to Bright Colors for the Winter Season.

Changes in Old Styles and Introduction of Some New Ones.

New Ideas in Waists and Skirts--Some Pretty Street Dresses.

Now that buttons are worn on every sort of garment, the feminine world will be interested to know there is considerable scope just now for the display of style in miniature. Such buttons in artistic taste in painting buttons in the several different sizes are particularly pleasant to paint upon. These ladies who can execute miniature painting well would find no difficulty in managing the buttons. Other and larger plaques and some as small as a penny are intended to be mounted as brooches. The artist herself can mount her painting when finished. They are to be had in various styles, the plainest consisting merely of a rim of metal, with an ordinary brooch pin at the back. For larger paintings still--the size, perhaps, of an ordinary miniature--very neat pocket cases are to be had. These are especially useful in preserving the painting from injury, and a portrait thus enclosed is often valuable as a parting gift to a friend bound for foreign lands, says the Boston Beacon.

Among the larger and more important of the knick knacks sold for amateur artists is a table flower-pot stand. It is bent iron, and is gracefully designed. It holds three flower-pots, those which are especially made for holding white and intended for the Delft painting, which is carried out in blue and white to imitate the china of that name. Some bent iron cake stands are an improvement on the wickerwork racks, and some rims of bent iron specially made to hold hand-painted plates and plaques are novel and acceptable. Many of the new knick knacks are made of white metal, and are especially made for Delft painting and among them are some china-white scallop shells mounted on letter racks, and some of the same intended for the Delft painting, which is carried out in blue and white to imitate the china of that name. Some bent iron cake stands are an improvement on the wickerwork racks, and some rims of bent iron specially made to hold hand-painted plates and plaques are novel and acceptable. New gowns just to be had more than their usual interest. The styles are constantly changing in some ways. A stylish costume just completed for the American court of a popular actress is of old blue crepe, with a pretty bodice of chiffon accented pleated and in the same color relieved with a contrasting white satin ribbon profusely jetted. Her traveling dress is of fawn Harris tweed, the sweater coat and skirt having a lining of poppy red silk, a short double-breasted cape lined with scarlet cashmere is worn over it. The coats and skirts are now made of a delightful new French hop-sack in many good colors and combinations of coloring. Cloths, serges and homespuns are here to be selected in great variety. The smartest French capes in blue, myrtle green and black are perfectly flat on the shoulders, and have turned over collars. The braiding, in a pretty looped design, is set on round the edge, and higher up vandykes with the same are arranged. Other stylish little garments are a tan box cloth, double-breasted and elaborately strapped, and with velvet flat collars. A charming evening dress is of blue velvet, with the front of the skirt being paneled of the same, and edged at either side of this with a passementerie of gold and silver. The hem of the skirt a large negligee bow of white crepe de chine is placed, and another is half-way down the side. The bodice of flaky killed crepe de chine has a garniture round the top and across the front of the bodice, and bows of ivory velvet on the shoulders and in front. The sleeve of the cape is open on the top, and trimmed with the passementerie.

Fancy sleeves are to be the smartest things this winter. The sleeves of gowns will be much studied. Slashed sleeves are always handsome, if not always becoming, and it is a fashion which allows the use of two or three materials at a time, which seems just now to be the acme of style. The sleeves of gowns where all sorts of goods are used can be more easily imitated than the plainer and more severe styles, where every line and curve shows so distinctly, and the collections of many scrap-boxes can be utilized to good advantage in these days. A bit of old lace, jet ornaments, black silk, colored velvet, etc., can be all piled helter-skelter together in a waist, while as for the skirt, if it only hangs well and be of good material, it is a thing of beauty in its long, unbroken lines; all the more for contrast with the trimmed waists.

Very dressy jackets are in fashion this autumn, forerunners of the velvet ones to be seen later. Of course the tailor-made coats are in style, they always are, but these more dressy garments are for afternoons wear. A tan coat, cut quite short, is exceedingly smart covered with black lace applied so that it looks like braiding, and the fancy corsetry and vests are elaborately trimmed with velvets of contrasting shades or, inconspicuous as it sounds, with white lace collars and jabots.

The new laces and dress trimmings for evening are too charming to be realized by mere detailed description. In many shades cheneille forms leaves in the midst of flowers, and scrolls of multicolored iridescent sequins and pieces of silver and gowns, or portions of gowns, have waved lines of cheneille introduced into the patterns. White silk is worked with silver and pearls, and the demand for mouseline de soie and kindred fabrics can hardly be met. This is a work of great patience, with its open stripes, with a buttonhole stitch, which is delightful when mounted on satin, while the same material is also worked all over with the finest gold thread, interspersed with paillettes in color, and sometimes there are elaborate flourishes of this at the hem. Black evening gowns will be worn a great deal this winter, and there are quite elaborate straight-edged galons for trimming necks and satins. These are worked all over, so that no foundation is visible, with mother-of-pearl-colored cheneille, opals, tinsel and gold or silver thread--indeed, everything that in bright new brilliancy combined. Some stripes of embroidery on mouseline de soie, like coral, outlined with gold thread, makes up, delicately. There is no doubt that fronts distinct from the skirts are to be in vogue, and preparations are being made to meet that want. Insertions of Valenciennes lace are let close together into mouseline and chiffon, and nets are worked with stripes with beads and sequins of all colors. Blue steel and jet blend most harmoniously together.

REDFERN'S REVIEW.
As Usual He Has Pretty Offerings.

Excellent taste invariably characterizes all the productions from the well-known tailors on Fifth avenue--and just at present they have some very novel and original gowns and jackets, specially designed to meet the requirements of the horse show--that much-discussed and long-looked-for occasion. Smart is the only word--backed though it be--which describes the severely plain tailor's coats, the only ornamentation of which are the horse-shoe buttons. At these attractively arranged salons are also to be met some very charming model gowns. One particularly neat and yet extremely smart looking is composed of chestnut brown "vicuna" with a full plain skirt pleated all round with the exception of the front, which is of white silk.

A remarkably original waist is arranged to open over a close-fitting vest of snake skin, an entirely new method of trimming, and one which sounds rather "creaky" at first. Dame Fashion always has been somewhat eccentric in her ideas and, having employed leather and lizard skins, besides various other horrors, she now looks about some of the even more astounding, and falling to find a more out-of-the-way decoration, she chooses snake skin and decorates the green velvet skin shall adorn the revers and cuffs of coats and vests too of tailor's make. To return to the gown in question, the collar also is of snake skin prettily cut with double points, while the revers which are piped with white trimmings. As many as a dozen small round steel buttons are used as trimmings.

Among these novel productions specially designed for the great event, the horse show, are a smart gown and coat which comprises, for the front, a decided novel kind of strapping, composed of the lines of dark brown cloth with a narrow insertion of white running down the center. The brown and white strapping trims the front of the coat and also the sleeves and collar in a very effective manner. It is also used on the back of the coat in two lines, narrowing into the waist line and so giving additional length in a becoming way. The sleeves are fully shirred on the shoulder and made in a pretty shape.

Mr. Redfern has also a new cycling skirt which certainly deserves a word of honorable mention, being so simply and ingeniously constructed to look graceful both on and off the machine, a fact which lends great attraction in the eyes of all fair cyclists.

WINTER FROCKS.
Nina Fitch Tells About Their Loveliness.

It is mostly in matters of detail that fashion is just now occupying herself, and which now come together with unchallenged license. This bodice proper is in black serge, as rough and heavy as a young blanket. The yoke, collar and double epaulettes are of white velvet; the long cuff buttons over sleeves of sapphire blue silk over which is gathered black silk muslin. Then with this there are bands of rich yellow lace--one at the front shaped into a pleat and fastened down with diamond and sapphire buttons, and a belt and collar of black mouseline de soie.

Moreover, it is strongly suggestive of an idea on the dressmaker's part to use up old scraps of stuff; so it calls to mind a good story told of the late M. Worth on the same subject. The lady in hand was an American, more famed for her dollars than good looks, and Worth was going through the agony of making her beautiful. Suddenly he grabbed up a scrap of silk from the floor, an unrolled bow, and twisting it into a knot, slapped it at the lady's knee.

"There," he said, "that bow is magnificent! I will make it the fashion."

"I won't have it," said the lady, whereupon Worth turned the knot into a different-shaped knot and planned it to her bust with the same speech, "I will make the fashion."

Again this was unpleasing to the dame, so after one bow after another had been made, she finally said, "I will make the fashion."

THE DIFFERENCE IN DESIGNS.
We may be useful to know that Marie Antoinette silks and Pompadour silks, so commonly mistaken, are not by any means the same.

The Pompadour article, the silk specialist will tell you, must always be flowered in sprays or bouquets, though it may be striped or checked or have a plain background in the shadowy fashion of chine silk.

On the other hand to be genuine, a Marie Antoinette must be primarily striped, slender lines in pale tones, on a pink, blue or white ground. The flowering comes in the shape of a gauze, and is not in wreaths all over the striped weave and tied with love knots, or else clambering up the striped May-pole fashion.

Again there may be small flowers scattered over the striped background, or, in color, and sometimes there are elaborate flourishes of this at the hem. Black evening gowns will be worn a great deal this winter, and there are quite elaborate straight-edged galons for trimming necks and satins. These are worked all over, so that no foundation is visible, with tales to bring her little neck to the gullet. Who knows? Ribbons have always been considered the symbol of extravagance and light-heartedness--and poor Marie even tied them in the laces of her milk pails or around the necks of her sheep when she chose to play feral. In a coat with the big fur collar is demonstrated the present all-embracing fancy for short tails and loose effects. Pale brown korse cloth and natural racoon fur are the materials employed; and, as with the jackets on this order, the lower portion is pleated, shirt method, to a yoke.

Almost no snug coats are worn now, these short blouse-like affairs having taken their place entirely. They are not always made of cloth, but some times the sleeves and yoke in one material and the skirt portion in another.

One splendid visiting affair, so arranged, was a Randnitz confection, which had the yoke and sleeves in emerald green velvet, perforated in large squares over white satin, and a skirt of broadtail.

This, though hanging at the back in four turning pleats, gave no impression of bulk, and was a very smart and becoming to both a slight and a well-rounded figure.

The perforations of the velvet were edged and threaded over with jet until this portion of the garment bristled like armor. The effect of the whole was superb.

A SMART STREET GOWN.
A natty street gown is one with double-breasted front and easy lines, which pictures the revived interest in black Hercules braid that has suddenly seized upon the modish world.

In this instance the gown stuff is Zibeline cloth, which seems conventional enough to support a stout braid; but it has been found on velvet as well, and not uncommonly will be seen a stylish English hat bonnet and rosetted with it. Compared to other trimmings, Hercules braid is quite inexpensive, and when a stout wool walking stick is in contemplation, it is well to keep it in mind. Black is always used on coats and a look of elaborateness can be made by combining different widths.

It is a tale of many colors that tells the back-story of the gown, and the square hat and long veil. In design it seems simple and familiar enough--except that the backs of bodices were never as much how few really new and original ideas there are in the present style of dress. Something has been borrowed from almost every century, and a chaotic jumble of the seasons of fashion, and the tendency is to adopt the old fashions and improve them with modern taste and ingenuity, rather than originate really new models; but the result is an artistic variety of designs and combinations of materials and colors which afford great opportunities for exercising individual taste. Large sleeves, tablier skirts, painted and embroidered silks have come back from the past, and soft, filmy materials wonderfully like chiffon played a conspicuous part in the construction of gowns more than fifty years ago. Black satins, embroidered all over in flower designs, with natural colors quite in the old-time fashion, are brought out among the novelties of the season and are made into short coat waists to be worn with satin and cloth skirts. Brocades, with gorgeous flowerings, are here again, and tulle for the young lady's ball dress is revived once more.

It is very evident that the latest plan of fashion is to have the waist and skirt both of one material, relieved of course, by any amount of color in the decoration, which is, at present, confined principally to the bodice. The tendency is toward bright colors for trimmings, on hats as well as on gowns, and magenta, bright green, and orange velvets, besides all the shades of red from vermilion to mahogany, are introduced into cloth and crepe gowns of the most subdued tints. Bright cloth is sometimes used instead of velvet, and when partially covered with an applique of heavy lace or an embroidery of silk and beads, it is very effective.

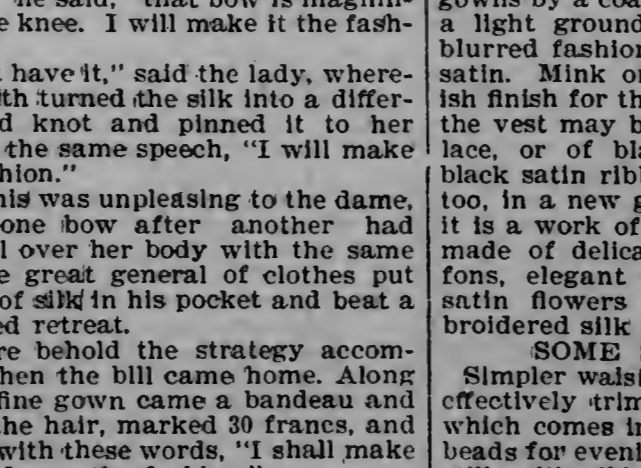

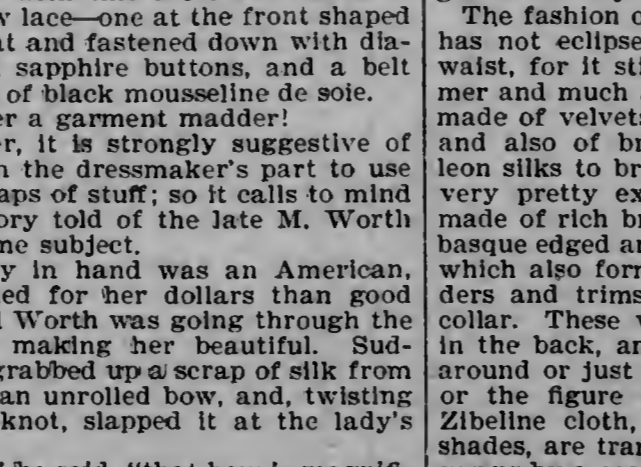

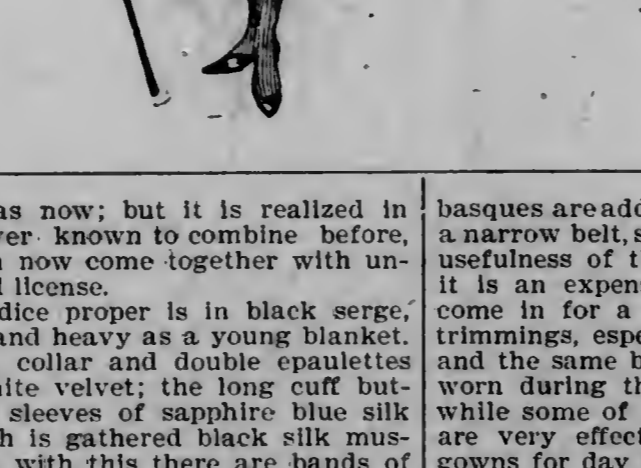

Blue and green is a very stylish combination this season, and black and white gowns are as fashionable as ever, relieved by gay colors and an abundance of lace on the waist. Expensive buttons and showy belt buckles remain distinctly in the fashion, and almost every gown has one of the other or both to complete the ornamentation. Some of the most elegant velvet gowns have very narrow belts of the same fur as the finish to the round waist, and the buckle required is very tiny, it is often very elegantly jeweled. Most of the ter gowns are in great variety, and all sorts of rough theory effects are among the latest novelties. A fabric woven to resemble astrachan in black on a colored ground and plaited with lines of another color, is one of the most striking designs, and frise and boucle goods, with black mohair loops of various lengths and thicknesses spread over a bright blue, green or brown foundation, are very popular styles. Another variety, called bouclette, is woven loosely of irregular threads, and in the midst of all this diversity of shaggy surfaces are the plain cloths, with the smooth, glossy finish, which are quite as fashionable as ever for more dressy gowns, while chevrons and tweeds are much worn for morning and traveling dresses. A thick canvas with a ruffled silk stripe is a fashionable material in black goods, and then there are no end of crepons woven in two colors, or all black, with wide puffs, resembling the bark of a tree more closely than ever. A novel effect is given to crepon gowns by trimming them with fur, Persian lamb being the favorite.

Black goods are shown in great variety, wool mixed with silk or mohair, which is thrown up in various designs on the dull surface, making them very glossy. One gown is of blue and black crepon, trimmed with Persian lamb fur. The skirt has a band of it down either side of the front, which is followed by a narrow band of cream-white satin covered with three rows of the gilt braid. At the bottom of this trimming is a finish of black satin ribbon arranged in folds and upstanding ends. The wide collar is of black velvet, edged with fur and trimmed with satin and braid to correspond with the skirt, and the front of the bodice has a box plait of crepon edged with fur, above which is a square vest of cream satin trimmed with tiny gold buttons and arranged with pointed ends like the skirt. Another more dressy costume has a black satin duchesse skirt, a green velvet zouave jacket waist with a basque effect in the back, green velvet sleeves, and a full cream satin front, edged with chinchilla fur. The edge of the jacket is handsomely embroidered; a large bow at the neck is of velvet, edged with fur, and the waistband of velvet is fastened with a jeweled buckle.

A green gown made of a new cloth with a wavy cord in it is trimmed around the

MRS. SARAH BRADLEY.

Between the lines of Mrs. Bradley's statement as given below one reads something of the history of this devoted wife and mother. Surely she has passed through the furnace of affliction "heated doubly hot," and the joy that reigns in her household on account of her restoration will be shared by a large circle of acquaintances. Mrs. Bradley is a widely known pioneer resident of Brookfield, Trumbull Co., Ohio. It is with a view to helping others who are suffering from nervous disorders or disease of the heart, that she sends us the statement of her case, which is certainly one of the most complicated in medical history, and should convince the most skeptical reader that Dr. Miles' remedies cure when all other means fail.

"Twenty years ago the 25th day of last December I was compelled to take to my bed on account of extreme nervousness. My husband said he would rather go to the penitentiary than through another such sickness, and he had a me for a few years previous. Little did I suspect he was then on the eve of a twenty-year campaign. We employed in all twenty-six different physicians, the best we could hear of, and it cost us over $2,000.00, but I only grew worse. I became wholly unable to walk, and the carriage from one room to another. I became so nervous the doors had to be cushioned, the clocks were stopped and the family went about in their stocking feet. I was so miserable that life seemed unendurable, and all I asked for was death. The doctor said my extreme nervousness was caused by excess of the stomach, and performed four different operations, which nearly cost my life each time, but no benefit resulted. To give me strength strychnine was given me every day for five years and calomel every third day for three years. My headaches were terrible, especially in lower back part of head, and sharp pains between shoulders, down my back and side of limb. My back was seared and cupped for three years and blistered the whole length with fly blisters. Nothing I ate would digest, but simply distressed me. Worse than all, however, was my nervous fear. I was full of fear I dared not eat, nor drink, nor try to walk or sleep, yet I did not know what I was afraid of. I was a wearisome burden to my friends. At last the druggist persuaded my husband to have me try Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. The first bottle was not finished before I could eat with a relish and was able to walk, and before I had taken three bottles was able to do my own work, and after taking six bottles I am cured. My weight has increased over fifty pounds. No words of mine are able to tell the good it has done me and I never tire of telling to others the story of my cure." Mrs. S. BRADLEY.

CAPES AND COLLARS.

Fashions for Winter are Now Established.

The continued fulness of the sleeves settles the popularity of the cape for another season, and it is again, in every way, an elaborate material, diversified in effect by elaborate trimmings which in some instances cover the entire garment. Everything in capes or jackets seems to be the fashion, so the particular style of trimmings is not easily defined. Fancy little collarettes of velvet or fur are worn most just at present, and are made just long enough to reach to the top of the shoulders, and are not quite so full as they were in the spring. A very jaunty little affair of Persian lamb is slashed up the back, and on the shoulders to the neck, which gives it the appearance of fullness, and is lavishly trimmed with mink tails. The neck is finished with a black satin ribbon ruche and large bow.

A round cape of Russian silk is elaborately decorated with the tails and paws of the little animal, and has a rolled collar, which is wired, so it can be worn high or low. But there is a pretty little substitute for this elegant novelty in the colored velvet collars, which almost any dressmaker can build for a comparatively small price. Black, green and golden brown are the favorite colors for these, and when lined with light brocade silk they require very little trimming, yet a band of fur round the edge and a fur-lined collar, are a great addition.

Other autumn capes are long enough to reach nearly to the waist, and a novelty in these is made of crepon with a black rise design on a black ground, and is lined with shot brown and black silk, which also makes a ruche on the edge. One very dressy garment is of black velvet cut in a round cape, which reaches to the point of the shoulders, and below this is a full of wide black lace. The whole is lined with shot silk, light in color, which is trimmed on the edge with pinked ruffles which show through the lace. Where the velvet and lace join there are loops of black satin ribbon and jet ornaments.

The winter capes are cut quite long, and not quite so full as a complete circle. With the exception of fur, of course black velvet is the leading material for dressy garments. They are trimmed with fur or feathers, and many of them are covered with an applique of jet and pearls, which makes them very elegant. Capes of black satin are lined with fur, and are lined with pale blue or violet satin. A cloth cape, handsomely braided, and lined with a wide fur collar, is a very desirable garment, and plain capes of velvet are made to look very warm by a wide band of fur around the neck and the bottom. Velvet coats, too, have a place among the fashionable wraps, and a very eloquent one shown has revers of Persian lamb and a vest of hand embroidery on lawn, with a frill of black tulle down the center. Velvet jackets made double-breasted, with large strong buttons, full backs in the back and huge sleeves, are very stylish for young ladies. Points of jetted passementerie and a ruche of ostrich feathers trim a black cape very handsomely, and big bows of black satin ribbon make it still more dressy. A lovely evening wrap is made of white mouseline lined with green glass. The bottom is trimmed with an embroidery of black lace with steel paillettes, and shows the green lining throughout. A full plaiting of black chiffon finishes the edge, and makes the ruche look even more effective. In every other fancy cape of velvet has jet cabochons down the back, and bunches of ostrich feathers on the shoulders. A novelty in jackets is a close fitting waistcoat and full sleeves of tan cloth, over which is a box coat of chestnut brown striped velvet embroidered down the back and around the epaulettes with jet, and the collar and cuffs are of natural racoon.

POWERS WILL SEND ANOTHER ULTIMATUM TO THE TURKISH SULTAN.

Belief That the Porte Is Inadequate to Control the Situation.

Matters Are Growing More Critical With Every Fresh Report.

Constantinople, Nov. 11, via Sofia. Bulgaria—As a result of the exchange of numerous telegrams between the representatives of the powers and their respective governments, lasting nearly all day Saturday and this morning, an important meeting of the ambassadors was held today and the situation was thoroughly discussed. Finally it was decided to send fresh representations to the Turkish minister for foreign affairs, Tewfik Pasha, renewing in much stronger language the demands addressed by the ambassadors to Tewfik Pasha's predecessor, Said Pasha, insisting upon being informed, without delay, as to what measures the porte contemplates taking in order to restore order in Armenia and reminding the Turkish government that it has already been notified of the intention of the powers acting in concert to take their own steps in the matter should the porte's failure to restore order.

It is known that the sultan still refuses to believe that the powers are in accord as to the action to be taken in case of the porte's failure to restore order. No amount of persuasion seems strong enough to bring about Hamid to reason, and the opinion is freely expressed that nothing short of a naval demonstration will awaken the Turks to a realization of the condition of affairs. The speech of the marquis of Salisbury will have a marked effect upon the porte, especially if the British premier refers strongly and pointedly to the present crisis. Mild language, however, it is said, will only make the sultan hold out all the longer.

The news received here from the province continues to be of the gravest nature. Further disorders are reported from different sections of the empire so slowly that they might just as well have been left at home. The Turkish empire will become necessary in order to avert further and much more serious bloodshed. The porte seems to be doing what is going on, or utterly incapable of appreciating the extent to which anarchy has spread during the last few weeks.

No serious outbreak is apprehended here, as the British fleet is within easy steaming distance of the Dardanelles, and in spite of the desperate efforts being made by the Turkish authorities to suppress the rioting and bloodshed, the marquis are daily, almost hourly, growing worse and worse in the provinces.

BAHRI PASHA PROMOTION.
Constantinople, Nov. 11.—It is said that the sultan has decided to appoint Bahri Pasha, who was dismissed from a governorship owing to his ill treatment of Armenians, to the post of governor of the province of Van. Sir Philip Currie, and who on Saturday last was decorated by the sultan with the grand cordon of the Osmanli order, "as a reward for his good services," is to be appointed to command the Turkish troops going to Zetoun. The number of victims of the Armenian massacres is now reported to be 150,000, and it is estimated that the total number of Armenians, men, women and children, who have been killed in the massacres exceeds 100,000, and the total is being constantly added to.

The reason assigned for the fact that he has found it necessary to distribute the funds collected for the relief of the suffering Armenians is that the sultan has ordered that the relief work there, interrupted by the forced retirement of the Armenian relief committee, be resumed. It is estimated that during the past week or ten days, 300 Armenians have been killed without trial from Turkey and the police are still engaged in making arrests.

The rioting and bloodshed at Erzerum is said to have been much more serious than any reports previously made public have pictured it and it is asserted that even the presence of Shokri Pasha with his troops failed to stop the massacres. The unrelenting Armenians, women and children were huddled together to death by the hundreds. A gentleman from Erzerum says he met between Erzerum and Balur, 300 women who fell on their knees by the roadside imploring protection, saying that their husbands were murdered, and that they were starving and homeless. The rising of the Druses is extending on all sides and several villages of the district of Hauran have been destroyed by fire.

These are samples of the terrible reports which are continually reaching this city by one means or another, and although there may be exaggerations, there seems no valid reason for doubting that they are correct in substance. Under these circumstances it is not to be wondered if even the most sanguine doubts that there is any possibility of the restoration of order in Armenia without the intervention of the powers.

It is said that the sultan has appointed by the Turkish government to carry out the scheme of reform in Armenia, which is unable to be supported by Turkish troops, to the whole mass of Armenians in the streets of an important city like Erzerum. It is difficult to see how the wild Kurdish tribes can be prevented from continuing the work of exterminating the Armenians, which has been going on for some time past apparently with the approval of the sultan.

FORECLOSURE BEGUN.

$24,000,000 Is the Aggregate Amount Involved.

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 11.—The Bay State Trust company, of Boston, has commenced foreclosure proceedings in the United States court against the Oregon Railway Extension company and all the affiliated corporations. The amounts involved aggregate over $24,000,000. The principal defendant is the Oregon Railway Extension company, with incidentally the Oregon Railway and Navigation company, the Farmers Loan and Trust company, the Union Pacific railway, the American Loan and Trust company, all the receivers of the Union Pacific, and Edwin McNeill, receiver of the Oregon Railway and Navigation company.

The Bay State Trust company, in conclusion, represents that the mortgage given by the Oregon Railway Extension company constitutes a valid mortgage lien on all the property mentioned. It therefore petitions for an accounting of all the amounts lawfully due under the trust, and for the foreclosure of the mortgage.
